New Jersey DOT Earmarks $6 Million for Replacing Bridge over Stony Brook

The New Jersey Department of Transportation has earmarked $6 million for the replacement of the historic stone bridge over Stony Brook on Route 206 at the bottom of Bruere's Hill.

According to Alexander Brown, area coordinator and spokesman for Mercer, Middlesex and Union county projects in the DOT's Department of Community Involvement, the first step is a preliminary engineering study to assess the present bridge's structural weakness and make recommendations for replacement. A contract to an outside consultant could be let in July, which is the earliest that funding for such a study would become available under the DOT timetable.

An environmental assessment would also have to be made, Mr. Brown says. Environmental assessment takes into consideration problems such as noise, flooding, drainage, and pollution caused both by the construction of the replacement and the new bridge itself, but delves less into factors of social and economic impact on the area than the environmental impact study required by, say, a new four-lane highway.

The results of these studies would then be presented to municipal officials, Mr. Brown notes, and eventually to the public before construction begins. Construction for the Route 206 bridge replacement could begin in 1988, according to the DOT timetable.

However, each phase has to be funded as it comes along, and at the present time no money has been allocated for the construction of this bridge replacement. At some point in 1985, Mr. Brown says, a decision will be made as to where the Condominiums Ahead For Palmer Square?

Condominium conversion may lie ahead for the Palmer Square West apartments.

Collins Development Corporation Vice President Gary Green said that the company is currently evaluating the possibility of doing a condominium conversion for the 107 apartments of Palmer Square West.

Over the past several months, apartments that have become vacant have been left unrented. "We aren't renting vacant apartments because, if we elect to do conversion, we would like to have some units available on the open market for sale," said Mr. Green.

The apartments, located above the shops of Palmer Square West, constitute the heart of downtown Princeton residential space. They range in size from 285 square feet to more than 1000 square feet.

State Agrees to Hold Public Hearing On Delaware Canal Restoration Plans

Although it remains unclear just how it happened that some 2,000 trees were cut down preliminary to the dredging of the Delaware and Raritan Canal in this area, state officials have agreed to hold a public hearing on the restoration plans for the park.

Two meetings were held this week on the subject of the canal dredging and the loss of the trees. On Monday afternoon, a large contingent of Princeton environmentalists went to Trenton to protest the cutting of the trees at the monthly meeting of the New Jersey Water Supply Authority chaired by Commissioner Robert E. Hughey of the state Department of Environmental Commission.

The group, led by Rosemary Blair, president of the Friends of Princeton Open Space and chairman of the D&R Canal Coalition, a citizens' group, showed before-and-after slides of the towpath taken by Mrs. Blair's husband David. According to several of those present, Commissioner Hughey seemed shocked by the views of a landscape made barren by the clear-cutting of trees contrasted with the lush foliage that used to line both sides of the towpath.

Although defensive to charges made by the Princeton residents that the Parks Department in the DEP had long neglected the Canal Park and paid only "lip service," as James Sayen, former D&R Canal Commissioner put it, to Commission requests for the park, Mr. Hughey promised to take a personal interest in the restoration of the park. He agreed to meet several times with Princeton residents on the matter.

On Tuesday morning a second meeting was held, this one in Princeton at the Valley Road building. This meeting involved officials from the Water Authority; the D&R Canal Commission; the state Department of Building Construction (DBC) in the Department of the Treasury, which lets contracts for state construction projects of all kinds; Conti Construction, contractor for the dredging of the Turning Basin and the two-mile stretch between the Millstone aquaduct and Kingston which has been particularly denuded of trees; the Township Engineer; members of the Planning Board, the D&R Canal Commission, and Township Committee.

Margen Penick, a co-founder of the D&R Canal Coalition that was instrumental in the creation of the Canal Park in 1974, was present at both gatherings. Concerned about the future status of the Canal, Mrs. Penick said she pressed for a public hearing on the text of an agreement between the N.J. Water Authority and the Parks Department under which the Canal Park will revert to the Water Authority.

That agreement, drawn up by the Attorney General's office, has not been signed yet, she learned, and she is anxious that there be public input about future maintenance of the Canal and what function the Parks Department will play in the new arrangement. She urged Rocco Ricci, executive director of the Water Authority, on Monday to hold such a hearing. On Tuesday, Michael Galley, engineer for the Authority, told her he would convey her request to the DEP Commissioner.

Borough Council Decides To File Suit on Route 1

It was drawing close to midnight, and the Borough Council meeting had been going on since 8 p.m. Councilman Dick Woodbridge, who had an early appointment the next morning, had left some five minutes earlier.

A lengthy discussion about a possible Route 1 suit had ended hours before, and the concerns of the meeting had shifted to the proposed Historic Sites Ordinance.

As council members and the public were preparing to leave, Jane Terpstra suddenly moved that the Borough attorney file a suit aimed at controlling the rapid development of Route 1 as soon as it could be prepared.

The motion passed 4 to 1. In favor were Mrs. Terpstra, Mildred Trotman, Irv Urken and Marvin Reed. John Huntoon was opposed.

Mr. Woodbridge, too, would have voted against the suit. "The timing," he said, "was unfortunate." But he added that it wouldn't have made any difference in the outcome of the vote.

Two Clothing Stores Will Occupy Retail Space in Bellows Building

Polo/Ralph Lauren will open in the Bellows Building, Nassau and Moore Streets, in April. And, sometime this summer, The Naragansett, a women's sportswear shop, will occupy the second of three retail stores currently being carved out of the former Bellows shop. Saladalley, which became embroiled in a jurisdictional dispute between the Planning and Zoning Boards, is out.

The new Princeton shop is being billed as the premier Polo shop in the U.S.A. by Howard Goldsmith, president of Panafashion-New Jersey, licensed operator of area Polo shops.

At a press conference that took place in the virtually gutted former Bellows shop, Mr. Goldsmith, looking very Ralph Lauren, said the store's "presentation" would be in excess of $1 million, and promised that instead of standard store fixtures, the shop would feature hardwood floors, antiques, and oriental rugs.

The rugs alone will be valued at more than $30,000, he said.

The Polo store, the 40th in the country and the third in New Jersey, will occupy 3,400 square feet and will carry men's, women's and children's clothing and ac-

Condos

Mr. Green stated that condominium ownership of Palmer Square West apartments would present an attractive possibility for inexpensive home ownership in Princeton. Some apartments, he said, would sell for less than $100,000.

Tenants have not been notified of the company's evaluation, according to the Collins executive, because it is "too premature to inform them."

"Until we have something specific, there really isn't anything to convey to tenants."

The evaluation of condominium ownership for Palmer Square West may not be complete until the end of the year, said Mr. Green.

Route 1 Suit

Borough Attorney Walter Bliss is now working on the suit with County Planning Board Attorney Michael T. Hartsough. He declined to discuss the suit prior to its filing, but said that it would probably be a joint suit with the county planning board and that it would be filed relatively soon.

Reasons Discussed. Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, early in the meeting, had discussed some of the reasons for instituting a lawsuit against West Windsor, South Brunswick and Plainsboro.

"We want to slow down the rapid and staggering development on Route 1 until certain conditions are met that would control this uncoordinated growth," she said.

Mr. Bliss said that the point of the suit is not to stop but to slow down the growth on Route 1 until the time that affected municipalities have revised their master plan and zoning ordinances to provide for negative effects.

Among the negative effects that were cited were the need for more housing and sewers, as well as the impact of traffic on the only major roadway that serves the new commercial development: Route 1.

The attorney said that it is the obligation of each municipality to consider and plan for cross-territory effects. "Zoning power should cover the welfare of an entire region, not a particular municipality.

"The suit will cite the failure to consider cross-territorial effect," he said

Objections Stated. Earlier that day, Councilman Huntoon had prepared a letter from himself and Mr. Woodbridge in which they specified their objections to a Route 1 suit.

They stated that judicial intervention is often a largely ineffective method for producing desired social outcomes and that any lasting solution to the environmental and infrastructure problems created by increased development along Route 1 must be resolved through the legislative process.

"We have learned the hard way," they said. "Many of the legal arguments proposed to support the Route 1 litigation were advanced in the Collins appeals. These kinds of arguments ... have already failed in court."

Reached after the Borough vote to sue, Mr. Woodbridge said that he believes the time is not "ripe" for adjudication, since it is in advance of controversy.

"Also, it might cost $6,000 to begin with," said Mr. Woodbridge. (This is the amount allocated for Route 1 litigation in the 1985 budget.) "But there are no guarantees there would not be a countersuit. If this gets into discovery and deposition, we're talking hundreds of thousands of dollars."

"The stakes are huge on Route 1," he said.

Both Mr. Huntoon and Mr. Woodbridge, however, have agreed to keep an open mind on the topic while still looking into alternative ways of coping with the Route 1 problem."

TALK ON BIOFEEDBACK

In South Brunswick. "Turn on the Power of Your Mind through Biofeedback" will be the topic of a program to be presented at the South Brunswick Library on Wednesday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Geraldine Fee, a technician with the Biofeedback Clinic in Princeton, will discuss how this technique can help to adjust the heartbeat, lower blood pressure and reduce muscular tension. She will also cover the use of biofeedback machines, body-charting, and the value of biofeedback as an alternative to drugs.

The program is free and open to the public

4 SITES RECOMMENDED

For Greenacres Acquisition. The Environmental Commission will hold a special meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. to discuss four sites that have been proposed for acquisition by the Township in 1985 as open space.

No dollar amount has been assigned to the acquisition program for which Greenacres funds application is expected to be made. Nor is there a line item under the 1985 Township capital budget for acquiring open space tracts, and yet the heading on a Planning Board memo describing the sites says "to be acquired in 1985."

Three of the four sites are on "the ridge," that environmentally sensitive hilly area of diabase rock and hardwood forest that stretches across the northern Township. They include eight acres in the northeastern corner of the DeMenil property; 35 acres of the Ettl Farm along the south side of Stony Brook; and a five-acre parcel known as the Larsen property that juts into Autumn Hill Reservation.

The fourth site is an 18-acre parcel to complete the Princeton Battlefield Park. The parcel fronts on the south side of Route 206 and overlooks the Battlefield. According to Elizabeth Hutter, who prepared descriptions of the lands to be acquired for Planning Board and Township Committee consideration, the land was the site of numerous rear guard skirmishes as the British forces moved up Bruere's Hill toward Trenton.

The portion of the DeMenil tract under consideration for Township Greenacres acquisition intrudes some 600 feet into the existing Township Woodfield Reservation. The tract is presently the subject of litigation over changes in zoning, which have since been rescinded. But Mrs. Hutter feels that development of this tract would break "the continuity and the tranquil atmosphere of the existing Park."

She says it is important to seize this opportunity to protect the existing parklands on either side from intrusion of housing units visible within the boundaries of the park and disruption by the construction of the roads and driveways to serve them.

The portion of the Ettl Farm that is proposed for Greenacres purchase lies to the rear of the farm. It is almost untouched land with a mature stand of native hardwood trees on a band of steep slopes leading down to Stony Brook and the lower flood plain lands west of the Brookstone development.

The Township's affordable housing ordinance designates the Ettl Farm as an R-M site on which a developer would be required either to set aside 22 percent on or off-site for lower income housing in return for a density bonus. This fact would make acquisition and preservation of this part of the tract "even more necessary and urgent than before," Mrs. Hutter notes, "to provide a place of shade and tranquility accessible to future residents of the site."

The Larsen property at the top of the ridge has been vacant since a fire a year or more ago destroyed the single existing dwelling in a small clearing on the property. The parcel is a narrow rectangle jutting for its full length into Autumn Hill Reservation. Its acquisition would prevent construction of a new dwelling and access road within the overall boundaries of the park and make for a continuous block of protected park land, the memo states.

The addition of 18 acres to the Princeton Battlefield Park is in accordance with the State's Master Plan for the Park as well as the Master Plan of the Princeton Regional Planning Board. Included in the proposed expansion area are Worth's Mill, the Stony Brook hamlet, the historic stone bridge on Route 206 and the Friends' Meeting House.

With acquisition of this parcel, most of the lands on which the physical features played an important part in Washington's strategy to outwit the British in the battle that is considered an early turning point of the American Revolution will be preserved. Acquisition of the parcel will also buffer the northwestern portion of the existing Historic District from development.

In addition, proposed development of the White tract, the old Hunt Farm dating back to Revolutionary times, will prevent the completion of the park as registered, Mrs. Hutter says.

Palmer Square East will be closed for three weeks for 24 hours a day when masonry work is done, and off and on for a three-month period when the roadway will be closed during the day, but open at night and on weekends. "The status could change from day to day, depending on the type of work being done," Lt. Thomas Michaud reported.

BUDGET IS ADOPTED

By Township Committee. The 1985 municipal tax rate in Princeton Township will be 40 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. This represents a two cent increase in the municipal rate from the 1984 rate of 38 cents.

Joined with the estimated school tax of $1.15, up one cent from 1984, and the estimated 92-cent County rate — which is the same as last year — tbe total 1985 tax rate will be $2.47 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Township Committee held a public hearing and adopted its 1985 budget last Monday night. Deputy Mayor Gail Firestone chaired the meeting in the absence of Mayor Winthrop S Pike. The budget was adopted by a 3-1 vote, with Committeeman William H. Cherry casting the single negative vote.

Mr. Cherry explained that he was voting against the budget because he felt the decision not to reduce the sewer user charge rate in a year in which sewer costs were less than anticipated revenue was discriminatory. He proposed an amendment which would have delayed adoption of the budget to permit another look at apportioning sewer charges vs. the monicipal tax rate, but his proposal was not seconded.

The Township budget for 1985 totals $7.7 million, $267,702 more than in 1984. The budget was figured by Township Administrator James Pascale using the permitted 6.5 percent index rate cap rather than 5 percent increase over the previous year's appropriations. However, proposed expenditures were held under the five percent ceiling, with the $66,570 that would have been permitted under a 6.5 percent ceiling set aside to build up surplus or as a reserve against unforeseen emergeney needs.

Mojor increases in tbe Township's 1985 bodget are attributable, among other things, to payment of hond anticipation note principal, primarily for the first of four installments of the Township's share of the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority underbilling.

Other items on the appropriations side that increased the budget for 1985 include a six percent across-the-board salary increase; the hiring of a new patrolman; higher interest charges, and a 100 percent increase in the capital improvement fund for such things as sewer rehabilitation, road resurfacing projects, and affordable housing land acquisition.

In other business, Committee gave the nod to Sewer Operating Committee for a $17,000 project to televise sewer lines onder certain roads that are doe to be resurfaced in the Borough and Township in the coming year. By identifying the roads now, the SOC and the engineers of both municipalities hope to avoid digging op a roadway that has jost been resurfaced.

Proposed Ordinances. At its work session, Committee was scheduled to consider four proposed ordinance amendments but, because of the lateness of the hour, only two were discussed before Committee went into closed session. One proposal involves revisions to the cluster ordinance to encourage tighter clustering, require more "true" open space of developers opting for a bonus density, and reqoire that a portion of a bonus density cluster development be in smaller townhouses or two-family units.

Committee will ask Planning Board representatives to explain these requirements and present more information on the different costs and likely results from bonus density cluster development when it next considers this ordinance. A second proposal had to do with setting op fair share contributions from developers for off-tract improvements that would be required in the foture because of the development.

The concept is similar to the sewer trost fund for the rehabilitation of the sewer lines, to which developers now contribote in proportion to the sewer gallonage needs of the proposed development, bot is conceived particularly to address foture needs for off-tract improvements such as road widening, traffic signals, turning lanes and interseetion improvements.

A proposal to exempt certain Princeton University properties from site plan review procedures was again on Committee's agenda but was not addressed Monday. Nn representative from the University was present.

TIME SEEMS RIPE

For Historic District. After many years of trying to establish an Historic District in Prineeton, the proponents of such a district face their brightest prospects ever.

The new Historic Preservation District Ordinance will be introdueed at Borough Council on either March 12 or March 28, after yet another round of input from those involved in preparing it.

These include Mayor Sigmond, several Borough Council members, Borough Attorney Walter Bliss, Princeton Planner Duggan Kimball, Zoning Officer Frank Slimak, and representatives from the Joint Historie Sites Commission, Princeton University, the real estate indostry, and downtown business.

The University, one of the staunchest opponents of sueh an ordinance in the past, is more positive about the current draft.

Vice President Eugene McPartland said that the ordinance would be acceptable to the University providing that the borders of the Historic District remain as recommended and that the general direction regarding modifications continues to be followed.

Collins Development Corp. Vice President Gary Green said that he is philosophically opposed to such an ordinance because it creates one more problem in getting permits approved and done.

"However," he added, "I think the program as written is responsible, and I was extremely impressed with Connie Greiff's attitude and her responses as to how the ordinance should be handled."

Mrs. Greiff, a member of the Joint Historic Sites Commission, had discussed the draft ordinance and described the proposed historic district at last Thursday's Borough Council meeting.

The ordinance would establish an approval process similar to that of "straight" zoning, with an Historic Preservation Review Board taking on the role and responsibilities of the Site Plan Review Advisory Board. Waivers may be obtained for alterations considered to be very minor.

———

The Historic Preservation District, as it is presently defined, would consist of three parts: Jugtown, the central business district, and Mercer Hill.

The Jugtown section, which includes significant 18th- and 19th-century buildings, would match the boundaries of a proposed National Registry Jugtown District.

The central business district, which Mrs. Greiff called the historic core of Princeton's commercial and educational history, would include the part of the University campus that faces Nassau Street, the business section of Witherspoon Street, and Palmer Square.

Right now, it continues to Moore Street. However, Mrs. Greiff said that, if it were desired, this section could end with the east side of Davidson's.

The Mercer Hill District, which Mrs. Greiff characterized as the site of the remaining great land holdings in Princeton, includes some Seminary and University lands, and Edgehill, Mercer, and Alexander Streets.

Mayor Sigmund announced that special notices on the new ordinance would be sent to everyone living in the proposed district, even though this is not required by law.

The only one to speak against the new ordinance was former Borough Councilman Martin Lombardo, who said that it addressed itself only to the outside of the buildings, the facade, and was not concerned with the condition of the buildings' interiors.

OPENING DELAYED

For New Restaurant. The new French restaurant located in the Peacock Inn on Bayard Lane, Le Plumet Royal, which had announced a late February opening, will not open until early April.

Co-owner Michael Walker said that additional power was needed in the kitchen, and that a new line has to be installed. "It seems to take an interminable time to do this."

———

Mr. Walker added that the inn is operational and that the new owners are quite satisfied with the number of guests.

The Peacock Inn was purchased late last year from Mr. and Mrs. Francis Swain, who had owned and managed it for 19 years. The new owners are Michael and Canice Lindsay, Richard and Mindy Fehring, and Mark Carrozza.

WORK HAS BEGUN

On New Station. Actual construction work on the Princeton Junction railroad station began this week. First on the agenda is the renovation of the northbound platform, which will be raised to the level of the train doors.

Two stairways leading to the platform will be closed. Passengers should use the two other staircases that are further from the building.

In this first stage, 100 daily admission parking spaces have been eliminated from the Maiden Lane lot. They will be replaced with 100 temporary spots in a new parking area off Vaughn Drive.

New Jersey Transit plans to pass out flyers to notify passengers of these changes. The goal is to move people around with as little confusion as possible.

OFFICES ARE ENTERED

On Nassau Street. Two office buildings next door to each other on Nassau Street were entered last week.

A rear window was forced to enter the building at 247 Nassau between 5:10 and 8:55 in the evening. Once inside the intruder took a $4500 copy machine and an $1800 IBM typewriter from a first-floor office. Taken from a second-floor office, police said, was a $1200 typewriter.

A typewriter valued at $350 was stolen overnight from a first-floor office at 245 Nassau, where the door had been kicked in. The force of the blow shattered the office door and frame. Police report that the exterior door leading to the building is unlocked.

Two rings were stolen last week from a dresser just inside an unlocked students' room in 1922 Hall on the Princeton University campus. Taken was a gold chain with a gold high school class ring (St. Anselm's Abbey School) valued at $680, and a second gold school ring worth $100.

Police said that one of the occupants was in an adjacent bathroom when she thought she heard someone in the room, but no one was there when she entered. The theft was discovered later in the day.

Fifty dollars were removed from a petty cash box in an office of AAA Repro-Graphics, 262 Alexander Street, between 7 Friday evening and Monday morning. The office had been entered through an unlocked basement window, police said.

A home on Hun Road was broken into last week and ransacked; the owners are away.

Police report closets in the living room, dining room and kitchen were ransacked, as well as two bedrooms. Two pillow cases are missing but Township police say they will have to await the return of the owners to find out what may have been taken. Township detectives dusted the interior for prints.

The entry was discovered by a neighbor who noticed a broken front window. Police, in investigating, found speaker prints outside the window. A further check revealed an unsuccessful attempt to force two rear doors that had deadbolt locks.

The resident of a Pine Street apartment discovered Thursday morning that her apartment door had been shattered and her apartment entered. Police report the apartment was not ransacked and nothing was stolen.

Last Wednesday evening, at 8:35, a large stone was thrown through the front door window of Clancy Paul in the Princeton Shopping Center, triggering an alarm.

Police say they do not know if the incident was the start of an attempted theft, but there were no signs of any actual entry.

$1.25 MILLION IS BID

For Landfall. Max E. Spann, a Somerset County realtor who also manages a 188-acre dairy farm in Warren County, was the winning bidder for "Landfall," the estate built by Robert C. Roebling on Route 206 in Lawrenceville.

Mr. Spann purchased the title to the 20-acre estate across from Squibb with a bid of $1.25 million at an auction conducted by Properties at Auction at the Hotel Pierre in New York City last week. The purchase price was below the $1.47 million value assigned by an assessor in 1983 for the former owner, Iranian businessman Manouchehr Azmoudeh. The estate has been on the market for the past two years.

Mr. Spann says he purchased the property as an investment and adds he has not decided what he will do with it. He says he has one client who is looking for a corporate retreat, a possible use for the eight-bedroom, nine-bath Tudor-style mansion. Present zoning would permit the remaining 12 acres to be subdivided into five or six lots worth about $60,000 each, according to the assessor's report.

If he does subdivide the property, Mr. Spann indicated that he would do so for luxury residences. He is the developer of a tract in Bedminster where houses on 20-acre lots are selling for between $500,000 and $700,000.

Robert C. Roebling was a great-grandnephew of John A. Roebling who designed the Brooklyn Bridge. A bas relief of the bridge is cast in the mantel of the fireplace in the grand reception hall of the estate.

Known as a Trenton civic leader and a yachtsman, Robert Roebling only lived in the house about five years before moving to an island near Savannah, Ga. He later nearly lost the property because of delinquent property taxes which he refused to pay as a protest against what he felt was the unreasonably high assessment.

In 1940 it was sold to Col. Arthur Poillon, commander of Fort Dix, and later to Robert and Peggy McNeil, who lived there for 20 years, until 1949 when it was purchased by the Iranian businessman.

Mr. Roebling was labeled "Trenton's richest young man" in 1921 while he was still in prep school after his father, Karl G. Roebling, president of John A. Roebling's Sons and Co., died suddenly on a golf course. Later, as vice commodore of Region 2 of the Boy Scouts of America, Mr. Roebling had to be rescued by the Coast Guard after losing his rudder off the Jersey shore in a 1928 storm.

He was also the composer of an obscure ballet suite and chaired a committee charged with raising the morale of the unemployed during the Depression by promoting athletic contests.

The $1.25 million bid by Mr. Spann is almost 20 times the $60,000 Roebling paid for the land on which to build "Landfall" in 1928.

THEFT AFTERMATH

Two VCRs, Gold Necklace. Last month an office employee in Nassau Hall reported to Borough police the theft of her wallet which contained her identification, credit cards and some blank checks, but no money.

The next day, two of the checks, using the victim's identification, were cashed at stores in the Whitehall Mall shopping center in Whitehall, Pa., to buy two video cassette recorders, one costing $519.34 the other $381.58. At a jewelry store five minutes from the mall, a third check was used to purchase a $278.25 gold necklace.

In all three instances, the person cashing the check was described as a heavyset black female in her late 20s accompanied by another black female.

Chief Michael Carnevale said he reported the purchases to show how thieves take advantage of a theft. "What might seem as not a substantial loss at first turns out to be sizeable," he said.

TWO TEENS ASSAULTED

And Robbed. Two 16-year-old Princeton teenagers were assaulted and robbed just after midnight Saturday morning at the corner of Witherspoon and Spring Streets.

Police report the two victims were allegedly assaulted by two black males about the same age. One victim told police he was punched in the jaw; the other reported being grabbed by the throat and shoved against a building. Twenty-seven dollars was taken from one victim, $10 from the other.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that, as far as police are aware, no words were exchanged and the incident is still under investigation. The suspects are believed to be Trenton residents because they were seen on a Trenton bus by the victims.

ANOTHER WEEK

Another Oriental Rug. Another Oriental rug was stolen in Princeton last week, a six by eight-foot rug from the first-floor "Red Room" of the Elm Club on Prospect Avenue. Police report the red, white and blue-patterned rug, valued at $600, was taken between 2 and 11 Sunday morning.

Between 10:45 and 11:45 Monday evening while a Witherspoon Street shop was in the process of closing, someone snitched an unattended money bag containing $140 from a shelf behind the door.

An oven toastmaster valued at $149 and a $29 popcorn popper were stolen overnight last week from the Nassau Presbyterian Church kitchen. Additional items, police said, had been placed at the kitchen window but left there. There was no forced entry.

A student's knapsack containing various markers, instruments and books with a combined value of $192 was stolen last week from a second-floor room in the architectural building on the university campus, and that most popular item of car thieves, a radar detector, was taken from a 1981 Mercedes parked last week behind the rear of the owner's house on Spruce Street. Police report a front window had been broken between 12:30 and 7:25 in the morning to get at the $245 unit.

An attendant at Larry's Sunoco station on Nassau Street filled a car's tank with $12.82 in gas Thursday night only to hear the driver say, "I only told you to put in $5," and then drive off without paying anything. The driver was described as an Iranian in his mid-30s, 5-9 to 5-10 with short brown hair. Police have a description of his car.

Three Bikes Stolen. Three bicycles were stolen last week in Princeton, including a boy's green 10-speed model valued at $243 from in front of John Witherspoon School. Police report the bike had been secured with a spoke lock.

In the Borough, a boy's unlocked 10-speed worth $160 was taken from a rear year of a Chestnut Street home, and a locked $150 bike was removed from the front porch of a Wiggins Street home between 5:30 and 10:30 p.m.

A Neshanic resident lost $200 when her pocketbook was rifled after she had left it unattended last week in a Nassau Street office. The victim discovered her wallet missing when she got home.

More fortunate was an employee of Corner House in the Valley Road School building. Susan L. Micklewright told police on Friday that she had noticed movement in an office she had come from and saw her purse was missing. She went out the door and down the hall and observed a thin, light-skinned black male in his 30s with pockmarks on his face.

When she asked him if he had been in her office, he replied, "Yes. I guess you want this." With that he opened his coat and handed over her purse. "You ought to be more careful," he added. Police report the purse contained $8.

When 18-year-old James W. Cox of New Brunswick left Jadwin Gym on Saturday afternoon while a track meet was in progress, a university proctor noticed that he was carrying two warmup jackets under his arm. He was stopped and questioned.

Proctors were able to ascertain that the jackets valued at $125, were the property of a Harvard student and a Bucknell College student who were participating in the track meet. Cox was turned over to the Township police for processing. He was later released and faces a court hearing March 26.

CAR STRIKES BUILDING

Driver Was Surprised. The first surprise was spilling the coffee. The second was hitting the building. A third was that there were no injuries.

As motorist Mrs. Jaehyun Lee, 31, of 6 Rider Place, Princeton Junction, was entering John Street, having just crossed Paul Robeson Place shortly before 1 Friday afternoon, she spilled hot coffee on her leg. "I looked down at my leg and was surprised. Then I hit the curb and wall," Mrs. Lee recalled.

Her four-door 1978 sedan failed to make the curve, jumped the curb, crossed over the sidewalk and struck the southeast corner of the Dorothea House at 120 John Street. After striking the building, her car glanced off to the right and struck the railing of a wooden porch, before coming to rest against a two-foot-high cement and slate wall, knocking down a 10-foot section of the wall.

Mrs. Lee escaped injury but was issued a summons by Ptl. Dennis McManimon for careless driving. Her car, its front end damaged, had to be towed from the scene.

SICK DRIVER CHARGED

With Marijuana Possession. Charles Fiedler, 41, of Levittown, Pa., has been charged by Borough police with possession of less than 25 grams of marajuana. He faces a court hearing here on March 30.

Fiedler had been observed in his parked car on Chambers Street at 1:11 Thursday morning by Ptl. Victor Fasanella and Ptl. Ralph Terracciano on car patrol. He was behind the steering wheel with his head thrown back, indicating he may have been sick. When the officers noticed further evidence of illness near the car they stopped to offer aid.

As they approached they saw a pipe next to the front seat containing a residue that smelled like marijuana. After a search revealed that Fiedler was in possession of a plastic baggie containing marijuana he was arrested and charged.

last week in the office building at 22 Chambers Street ended in a complaint summons against Jerry Smith, 23, of Trenton.

At one office Smith had asked where the employment office was, at another where he could use a telephone and at a third where the banking office was. It is easy to understand why he was deemed suspicious, commented Chief Michael Carnevale. Someone in the building called police Thursday afternoon and supplied a description.

Det. Randy Sutton observed the suspect on Palmer Square with two carrying bags. He also noticed a cassette recorder protruding from a corner of one of the bags. During subsequent questioning, Smith replied that he had purchased the recorder, which he knew was stolen, from a junkie in Trenton for $12.50.

He was taken to police headquarters, charged with possession of stolen property and later released, pending his appearance this Wednesday in Borough court.

PARTY PLANNERS: Preparing for the 18th Annual Scholarship-Benefit Dessert Card Party of the Women's Club of Princeton are, left to right, Mrs. Betty Irish, co-chairman; Mrs. Carl E. Martinson, raffle chairman; and Mrs. Joseph Grazel, co-chairman. The event will take place at Stuart Country Day School on March 18.

BUILDINGS ARE CANVAS
For Graffiti Artists. Two commerical buildings in the area of Witherspoon and Lytle Streets were spray painted last week with graffiti.

Chief Michael Carnevale declined to reveal what was written on the buildings in various colors in letters as large as 30-inches high, for fear, he said, of encouraging more graffiti. In one case, he said, the owner was able to wash away most of the writing but a residue was left.

CIGARETTE IS BLAMED
For Bunn Drive Brush Fire. A lighted cigarette discarded by a visiting 15-year-old juvenile is listed by police as the cause of a Saturday afternoon brush fire off Bunn Drive in Princeton Community Village. Three trucks and 30 firemen responded and put out the blaze.

According to police, two 15-year-old juveniles who were visiting in the area were playing with cigarettes and matches. One admitted later to throwing away a cigarette that he thought he had put out.

When the brush ignited and flames started to spread, the youths first attempted to put out the fire with their jackets. Police report their eyelids were singed and both were treated at Princeton Medical Center for first degree burns.

The report of the incident was turned over to Township Juvenile Officer Peter Savalli for possible further action.

SPEEDER IS CHARGED
With Theft of Badge. A motorist stopped by Township police for speeding last week on Route 206 was later charged with the theft of a police badge.

When Officer Stephan Hogancamp stopped John W. Thomas, 51, of Chelmsford Court, Ewing Township, for speeding 59 in a 40-mile zone, he asked to see his license. In checking, he noticed a sergeant's badge in the driver's wallet. "Are you a police officer?" he asked

---

Mr. Thomas was not. Police ascertained that he formerly had worked for a firm, no longer in business, that supplied badges to police departments. Apparently, he kept one of the badges for himself, commented Capt. John Petrone.

Davis was charged with possession of stolen property and issued a summons for speeding.

COMPLAINT SIGNED
Against Check Passer. The owner of Center Shoe Repair in the Princeton Shopping Center has signed a complaint charging Michael Resnick, 42 Quince Court, Lawrenceville, with issuing a worthless check for $22 on January 24.

Police said the victim acted after Mr. Resnick had failed to respond to a certified letter sent to his address.

COSTLY DAY IN COURT
For Princeton Driver. It was a costly day in Borough traffic court Monday for Alonzo Jones, 21 Lytle Street.

Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. fined Mr. Jones $365, sentenced him to two days in jail, and revoked his license for six months for driving while intoxicated. In addition, he was fined $115 and lost his license for six months for having no insurance, $30 for using an out-of-state license after becoming a New Jersey resident and $25 each for overdue inspection and unregistered vehicle.

Kpakunda Ezeze, 22 Bank Street, was fined $115 and lost his license for six months for no insurance, and paid $60 for an improper turn. He was found not guilty on a third charge of unlicensed driver.

James Norris, 32 Wheatsheaf Lane, and Paul D. Cochrane, 12 Nassau Court, Skillman, each paid $215 for having an open container of alcohol in their cars, and Mr. Cochrane paid an additional $60 for improper passing. Also paying two fines was Robert B. Ellis, 106 Prospect Street, Hopewell: $65 for failure to keep right and $25, no license or registration in possession.

Kim S. Thornton, 49 Lovers Lane, and Elizabeth C. O'Donoghue, 61 Lovers Lane, were each fined $25 for riding on part of a vehicle not intended for passengers.

Others: William J. Tate IV, 40 Princeton Avenue, $60, red light; Misako Yamaguchi, 63 Sayre Drive, $70, right on red without coming to a complete stop, and Roger L. Lustig, 2701 Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro, $40, hazardous tire condition.

In Township court last week, Caren V. Sturges, 605 Herrontown Road, was fined $65 for a red light violation. Thomas S. Harrison Jr., 226 John Street, paid the same amount for careless driving.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

By YM Children's Center. The YMCA will hold an Open House on Sunday, from 1-4:30 at its Children's Center in the Johnson Park School.

Children three to five years of age and their parents are invited to meet the YM staff and tour the facilities, including the gymnasium and wooded outdoor play area at the school off Rosedale Road.

The Children's Center operates five days a week, 12 months of the year, except for holidays. Days begin at 7:30; a mid-day mealtime is offered; and the latest hour for pick-up is 5:30. Special van service to and from a parent's workplace is to be offered by the YMCA Arrangements may be made at the time of registration.

In addition to the traditional curriculum areas of art, math, music, science, language and literature taught by specialists, the YMCA staff also provides instruction in swimming at the YM-YWCA building, as well as in basic movement and computers. The staff-child ratio is 1:8.

Children of single parents, as well as working parent families are welcome in the Children's Center program. Daily communication between staff and parents is an important feature of the program, and a 15-page Parents' Handbook is available upon request.

"Good child care does not replace parenting," says program director Jan Gill, "but we do provide parents with another very important support system for their children."

The YMCA sponsors an ad hoc group for Single Parents which meets on weekends, and aids its constituents with a bulletin board at the Johnson Park location for listing announcements of community meetings, classes and events.

Questions on the YMCA's child care program may be directed to Debbie Butterfield or the main office of the Princeton YMCA, 924-4497.

ROMAN FEAST PLANNED

For Ides of March. Roberta's restaurant in Princeton Shopping Center will celebrate the Ides of March on Friday, March 15, with a special Roman dinner. The restaurant will donate 10 percent of the gross to the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad.

"Who knows, perhaps if the Squad had been within Caesar's reach, he might have lived," remarks Roberta Churchill, owner of the restaurant. The dinner, by reservation for two seatings, 6:30 and 9 p.m., will include some authentic Roman foods such as panned oysters with egg and lemon sauce, shrimp and scallops the Antique Roman Way, and caramelized apple tart. The six courses will proceed ab uvo ad mala, from eggs to apples.

The dinner is the first of several planned to celebrate unusual holidays. Shake-

THERAPIST TO SPEAK

At YWCA Lunch. The YWCA's "Lunch with a Bite" program, featuring lively speakers on topics of current interest, returns Friday, March 22, at 12:15.

A home-cooked lunch will be prepared by the committee of Soupcon, a rehabilitation and training program for girls of Skillman Institute. The speaker will be Pat Murphy ACSW, a marriage and relationship therapist at Rutgers, and in private practice, who will talk on "Maintaining Individuality in Relationships." Ms. Murphy is president of Princeton Seminars Inc. and a past president of the Princeton YWCA.

NOMINATIONS SOUGHT

For Volunteer Award. The Princeton Area Council of Community Services has set March 15 as the deadline for submission of nominations for the Council's annual Robert C. Clancy Award for Outstanding Service as a Volunteer.

Nominations may be made in both adult and youth categories. The award will be presented in April during National Volonteer Week. Residents from the wide area — East Windsor to Griggstown; South Brunswick to Lawrence Township — served by the Council are eligible for nomination.

The Council has named a panel of five, all volunteers themselves, to select the recipient. They are Jeanne Silvester of radio station WHWH; the Rev. Bernardine McRipley, Protestant chaplain at Mercer County Community College; William L. Wilson, former mayor of Princeton Township; Almedia Pace, recently retired as a school administrator in the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District; and Grace Terhune, a teacher and active volunteer in Blawenburg.

PARTY PLANNED: Anne Holmes, standing, director of outreach and support services at Eden institute, and Carol Markowitz, director of educational services, prepare invitations to Eden's 10-year anniversary party to be held March 16 at the Ramada Inn. The party will include current and former staff, parents and trustees of Eden, founded in 1975 to serve the needs of autistic children and adults and their families.

SENIOR TRIP PLANNED

By Recreation Department. The Recreation Department has scheduled a trip to Huntingdon Valley Dinner Theatre to see "Woman of the Year," Wednesday, April 17. The cost is $22 for Senior Citizen Trip Club members, and $25 for non-members.

Transportation, the show, and a luncheon smorgasbord are included. Registration forms are available at the Office. For information, call 921-9480.

CAREER DAY SET

By Architectural Firm. Area high school students are invited to attend The Hillier Group Career Day on March 9.

The Hillier Group instituted Career Day seven years ago to give area students and their parents the opportunity to learn more about a career in architecture. To be held at the firm's Princeton headquarters, this year's program will continue that tradition. Because of the increasing interest in the interior design and construction management professions, Career Day - 1985 will be expanded to include emphasis on these two careers.

The career day program begins with a lecture and slide show by J. Robert Hillier, founder, or Principal, George Cedeno. Students and parents are then taken on a guided tour of The Hillier Group. Finally each student has an individual counseling session with a Hillier Group staff member to discuss personal questions about the professions of architecture, interior design, and construction management.

Representatives of major colleges and universities also will be in attendance to discuss their schools' programs and answer any questions. Last year, 16 schools attended Career Day and similar participation is expected in 1985. Almost 150 students attended in 1984 along with their parents.

Students wishing to set up appointments for Career Day should contact Linda Williams, director of public relations, at 452-8888, prior to March 1. Appointments will be scheduled on the hour and on the half-hour, beginning at 9 and ending at 3.

DISCOUNT AVAILABLE

For New YMCA Members. A ten percent discount on all programs at the YMCA is available to all new full-athletic members who sign up at the YM during March. For the entire month, a free t-shirt and additional member privileges will be allotted to each individual who joins, and families will receive a 15 percent reduction on membership.

Although registration for spring sessions has been going on throughout February, places still are available in most programs, especially the arts and adult fitness. Late registration will continue until March 15 for programs, but new memberships may be acquired at any time.

Highlights of the YM's Spring Program include creative movement (3 to 5 years); introductory dance (6 to 10 years); ballet, tap and Palmer Square Apartments.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am a former long-time resident of the Princeton area, and I am wondering what is happening at the Palmer Square apartments. My friends living there tell me that no apartments are being rented there — or have been rented for several months.

I always thought that Palmer Square apartments (which are owned by Collins Development) were for rent. If they are not being rented, I should think the tenants ought to be advised of any changes going on. Are the apartments being converted into condominiums?

What about people who are on the waiting list for apartments — will they ever have a chance to rent an apartment? Doesn't Collins Development need the money they are not receiving from rentals? Why aren't the tenants being informed of planned changes that in the long run could affect them and where they live?

This secrecy and closed-mouthedness only shows that Collins Development is interested mainly in making money and not in preserving what Princeton and Palmer Square has always been — a dignified place for peole to live in and to enjoy, without wondering what drastic change or disaster is around the corner.

YOLANDE HILLMAN

Editor's Note: In response to Ms. Hillman's letter, TOWN TOPICS called Gary Green of Collins Development, and an article on his answers appears on Page 1.

What's Happened Here?
To the Editor, Town Topics:

What has happened to Princeton? It used to be a beautiful town — now it is a town full of ugly construction and terrible streets, practically undriveable because of uneven places, potholes and poor patching jobs.

It is a town of unsightly buckling bike paths and "dancing" manhole covers when it rains, a town where many fall leaves were not picked up until after Christmas.

And as if Palmer Square and Nassau Street were not unattractive enough with empty shops, constantly changing stores, a huge disfiguring parking garage, and unending and disruptive construction, who authorized the tacky USA Today dispensers all up and down the street?

Everyone thought we had something special here. Are we becoming "Anytown, USA?"

Behind Closed Doors.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Princeton Area Council of Community Services is to be lauded for the Family Caregivers Conference held March 2 at the West Windsor-Plainsboro High School not only because the program was excellent, but also because it was a community service of which everyone supporting the United Fund should be aware.

The compassionate insights into the overwhelming problems of individual 24-hour home care for the impaired and homebound were addressed not in textbook medical terms but with very realistic immediately practical recommendations and alternatives for daily care. As one caring for an 102-year old mother, representing the many of us struggling behind closed doors to help our loved ones, it met a tremendous need. We thank both the participants and those who helped to fund the conference.

Setting Record Straight.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

A friend has just given us a copy of the January 23, 1985 edition of TOWN TOPICS, which presented in your "People in the News" columns, on Page 22, our gifting The Children's Museum in Indianapolis with our collection of folk toys, folk art, etc. The collection was shipped to The Childrens' Museum in November of 1984.

We wish to set the record straight! Bernard Barenholtz was not a co-founder of Creative Playthings. In fact, Creative Playthings began in 1945 as an educational toy shop, on West 95th Street in New York City, by Frank and Theresa Caplan. Barenholtz did not join Creative Playthings until a few years later. (His late wife Edith played no part in Creative Playthings at any time.) Frank Caplan was always president of Creative Playthings, Inc. and Bernard Barenholtz became vice president.

In July 1966, C.B.S. purchased Creative Playthings, Inc.

The sad part is that we had wished to gift the State of New Jersey with our collection. Our contract to use portions of the train terminal in Liberty State Park was abrogated by the State at the behest of political figures in Jersey City. We believe New Jersey's loss will be the gain of chilren and adults who support The Children's museum of Indianapolis.

Do you know that we write books for the parents of infants and young children? We will continue to search for outstanding examples of international folk art and folk toys.

IT'S NEW TO US

SHOP IN HOMEY ATMOSPHERE. Jean Hoover, manager of Longships boutique in Belle Mead, and Carol Childs enjoy the quiet country atmosphere where shoppers will find pretty silks and lightweight wools for spring as well as many designer dresses, skirts and jackets on sale.

A CACHE OF FINDS

Longships' Spring Clothing. A cache of handsome spring clothing is found at Longships, a gift shop and boutique located in a charming yellow clapboard house dating back more than 200 years. Owned by Douglas and Susan Rhoda, it is part of a commercial complex where Mr. Rhoda's computer forms business is also situated.

Manager Jean Hoover of Princeton says that many customers enjoy the pleasant ride to Belle Mead from town and appreciate the quiet, unhurried atmosphere of the shop. Here, women will find a terrific selection of designer clothes by Silk Farm, Emily, Herman Geist, Wilroy and Tudor Square, to mention only a few. A portion of the dresses, coats, skirts, jackets, and sweaters are classic in design, while other more current fashions, complete with large pleated sleeves, padded shoulders, dropped waistlines, sailor collars and small pleated skirts, will appeal to the more youthful shopper.

"We have a fabulous collection for spring this year. The silks are particularly pretty and feminine," says Mrs. Hoover, who is the picture of chic herself. She enjoys putting separates together for her customers — an effective and economical way of dressing up and down this season.

The mix-and-match linen skirts, blouses, jackets, and pants by Wilroy, Win Rodgers, and Tudor Square will catch the shopper's eye upon entering the old house which seems more like home than an impersonal department store. Crisp cotton poplin and linen, and 50/50 combinations which travel well, are seen in the ever-present wearable khaki, navy, and beige. Electric blue or a vivid red are popular for the more adventurous, to liven up their spring wardrobe.

Look for the new big, full skirt and the short overjacket. THe military and safari styles still seem to be evident in Longships' latest fashions. Combine one of the shop's new spring jackets with a versatile white linen skirt which can be worn with everything through the summer months. Pink, mauve, and raspberry also seem to be important colors, according to Mrs. Hoover and Carol Childs, who also works in the shop. Mrs. Childs favors the classic, princess style dresses by Kathryn Conover, whose dresses are reasonably priced yet made with superior fabrics.

Great Sale Values. There is good news for the budget-conscious shopper (and who isn't?) at Longships, where a big spring sale is in progress. Not only are many winter wool pants, sweaters, skirts, dresses, and coats on sale at almost 50% off, but several lovely silk dresses by Silk Farm can be worn right now through the spring months.

Winter white will slip into spring with ease this month. Skirts and jackets in white, currently on sale, will look marvelous with a new silk blouse or a jaunty scarf at the neck. Longships' famous plaid wool kilts with matching stoles are greatly reduced, so pick one up for next fall; they will never go out of style.

The 30's and 40's look is cropping up again. Longships is featuring stunning silk dresses by David Warren and Adrian-Avery.

Upstairs in the old house, graphics and prints will appeal to those in search of an unusual gift. Other interesting items such as ceramics, handmade gifts for the kitchen, and whimsical toys for children, will enchant the shopper. "Baby is Sleeping" pillows, English peg dolls at $3.25 each, and tiny dolls with porcelain faces are well-priced thoughts for Easter gifts.

"Almost everything in the shop is for sale, including all of these beautiful atniques," says Mrs. Hoover, pointing to an old corner cabinet. Note that the stunning Ghurka handbags in leather and fabric are now reduced by 20%. Larger duffles by the same company are good buys and gifts for the graduate.

Complete your new look for spring with a new strand of pearls or crystal beads. Cloissone pins, earrings, and barrettes will please the eye as well. Store hours are from 10 to 5 Monday through Saturday.

Harden, Knob Creek, Henkel-Harris, Statton, Stickley, and Baker.

"We really pride ourselves in offering the best selection of solid mahogany, cherry, oak and pine reproductions available on the market for this area," states Dick Gasior. His enthusiasm for his business has not wanted in the past 6½ years since he and his wife, Donna, bought the shop. Located in an historic old Harlingen school house, Gasior's is full to the rafters with all styles of furnishings; even the basement overflows with a huge assortment of less formal pieces, while the English antique reproductions are found on the main floor. The fact that Gasior's looks so much like a big old renovated house helps the shopper envision how a room at home might look with a few new pieces. It is arranged in gallery style so one can see an entire bedroom set together in a handsomely decorated room.

One quickly learns that the Gasiors know their business well and enjoy it tremendously. Their good taste is evident throughout the shop. It is not only a furniture store, but offers free decorating services — an unusual system which surely encourages one to shop there.

ADMIRE, AND SAVE! Beautiful solid wood 18th-century reproductions, such as this dining set, are on view at Gasior's furniture and accessories in Belle Mead, where a sale of lovely pieces by Harden furniture company is currently in progress through April 1.

Harden Sale. There could not be a better time than right now, because the Harden 120th anniversary sale is in progress until April 1. Sofas as low as $942, chairs for $369, solid cherry wall systems for any room in the house, cherry and oak dining room sets with upholstered hostess chairs — hundreds of beautiful pieces have been marked down.

Whole bedroom sets of solid cherry, a seven-drawer tier chest, a queen size four-poster bed, night tables, a double dresser, a lingerie chest, a bachelor's chest, and a Lincoln rocker are among the many wonderful selections. The Lincoln rocker by Harden features a solid cherry frame with Victorian arms upholstered in one of five fabrics.

Samples of wall-coverings, cutom draperies, squares of capeting, hundreds of handsome lamps, a wealth of baskets, and brass appointments fill the shop, offering a total look for those wanting to change their home a bit. An interesting collection of Oriental accessories may be of interest to some shoppers. This is the Gasiors' busiest time of year because it seems that come spring everyone would like something fresh and new to look at.

"We don't push our customers to buy a whole houseful of furnishings. Basically we work with as little or as much as our clients feel comfortable with," says Mr. Gasior. Interior Designer Corona Pfeiffer has been working with the couple for several years. She and Mrs. Gasior share the interior design and decorating workload, which includes some commercial work as well as residential — which might mean an entire home or a large complex of new homes.

Among the most interesting groupings of reproductions is the Yale collection by Harden Furniture Company initiated by one of the curators of the Yale art gallery who approached the firm to suggest reproducing some of the more outstanding pieces from the American furniture collection. The Mabel Brady Garvan collection, introduced in 1930 when it was presented to the University, is said to represent one of the world's "finest and most comprehensive collections of early American art ever assembled."

It boasts 10,000 examples of early American silver, pewter, furniture, ceramics, glass, brass, iron, textiles, coins, prints, and paintings. Several of the reproductions by Harden are on view and for sale at Gasior's. Hours at the shop are from 10 to 5:30 Monday through Saturday, except for Thursdays when the store is open until 9.

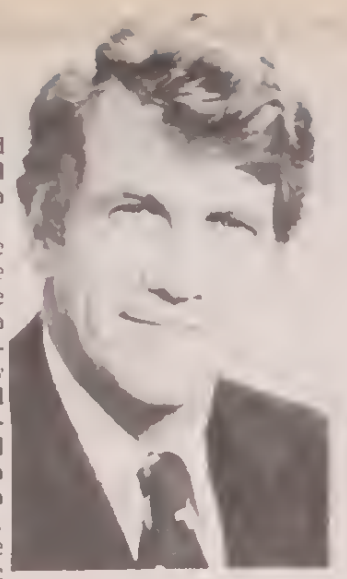
The purpose of the 28-minute production, entitled "The Best Weapon Against Nuclear War Is You!" is to encourage citizens to express their fears of the current nuclear arms buildup to their representatives in Congress and other public officials, in the expectation that a sustained public outcry against the nuclear arms race will help to end the threat of nuclear war.

The production was produced and photographed by Tom Dunham and written by Suzanne Fremon, who was also the executive producer. Numerous Princeton citizens took part in the production. Sound and graphics designer was Mark Schaeffer and illustrations were drawn by Hilary Brown.



Dudley F. Hawkes, M.D.

He has contributed articles and reviews to the New York Times, the Philadelphia Inquirer, American Heritage and Esquire.

In researching Sitting in Darkness, Mr. Bain and his brother Christopher, photographer for the text, hiked 110 miles through Luzon led by pygmy guides, tracing the path of an American soldier of fortune, a Filipino revolutionary leader and an American historian who left his desk for the hazards of the jungle.

The photographs of Christopher Bain, exhibited at the Asia Society in New York in 1984, will be on exhibition at the Arts Council in conjunction with this reading. For more information call the Arts Council at 924-8777

VOLUNTEER FOR AGENCY

Be Part of United Way. The United Way-Princeton Area Communities is looking for volunteers who want to be part of the process of determining how much funding member agencies will receive from the United Way.

Approximately 90 area people are involved in this effort every year. Their job is to review the budgets, programs, and requested financial support of the member agencies. They then determine what the United Way itself could and should allocate. The volunteers are divided into panels of five or six, and each panel reviews two agencies.

The group, known as the Budget Committee, will meet Saturday, May 4, for an orientation and training session. During the following week volunteers will be asked to visit the agencies they are charged with reviewing. Then, during the weeks of May 13 and 20, volunteers will meet with representatives of the agencies to review the budgets.

Allocations will be determined by the committee on May 29 and 30, and submitted to the United Way's Board of Trustees on June 19 for final approval.

A person does not have to be a financial whiz to be part of the process. The United Way has volunteer accountants on

A Waldorf First Grade—

The Waldorf School Association of the Princeton Area, working along with a strong group of parents and friends, is intending to bring a Waldorf grade school to this community. Parents wishing more information about enrollment in a new Grade One may contact Gail Tuschak (201-788-2782), or a member of the Board of Trustees at 609-924-7428.

The grade school is the heart of the educational movement begun by Rudolf Steiner in 1919. Now embodied in over 300 schools worldwide, the Waldorf school movement in this country is experiencing unprecedented growth, with over 40 new schools now building grade school programs. Behind this lies a growing wish on the part of parents, that their children receive a harmonious balanced education, which combines the powers of intellect, imagination and will in the child—

Township Police Have Had 30 Years of Dedicated 'Servis'; Norm Remembers Highlights, but Will Enjoy Retirement

"I found my biggest enjoyment was not how many people you send away but how many you can turn around and get set on the right road That was my biggest satisfaction. You can put anybody away; helping people is the thing I like to do."

With that, Norman F. Servis summed up his 30-year career in the Township police department which began March 1, 1955, and ended last week At the time, he recalled, there were six members in the department (there are 30 today) and his starting salary was $2,850.

Although the Princeton born and raised Servis has been on terminal leave since November, he will be reunited with with the police department one more time this Saturday when a dinner-dance in his honor will be held at the Flagpost Inn on Route 1 in South Brunswick

The affair starts at 6:30 with cocktails, and anyone wishing to attend should call Sgt John Hammond or Nanci MacLean at the Township police department (921-2100) for more information.

Promoted to Sergeant in 1968, and to Lieutenant ten years later, Lt. Servis was assigned in 1962 to the Detective Bureau, where he remained to the end of his career.

Throughout the '60s, Lt Servis recalls investigating burglary rings out of Philadelphia and Hamilton, but the case that always stands out in his mind, he says, is Laura Carpi, the Township housewife who disappeared and was found murdered

"Another I'll never forget is Rachel Bull. Frank Buck (Det. Frank Boccanfuso is Lt Servis' replacement in the bureau) and I apprehended Logan in the front yard He was trapped in the house and came running out."

Rachel Bull was a Princeton High School senior killed shortly before her graduation by an unemployed painter, David Logan, who was charged with her murder.

Still another incident that sticks in his mind, Lt. Servis says, is a fire at the Tenacre Foundation in the late 1950s. He recalls being inside a smoke-filled building with a mask on when his oxygen cannister went empty. "I couldn't see I just crawled along the floor, feeling for doors and managed to get out," he said "We lost about eight people They had old wooden buildings then."

An incident on the lighter side that Lt. Servis still recalls with a smile involved himself and the late Lt. Michael Lisi. Both were patrolmen in uniform waiting for the light to change at the intersection of Nassau and University Place, when their patrol car was struck hard from behind by a woman in a red station wagon.

"We'll call the police and just wait till they arrive," the officers said. "The woman in the car just stared at us in disbelief," said Lt Servis. "She didn't know anything about jurisdiction that because the accident happened in the Borough we couldn't investigate it."

(Newcomers to Princeton soon learn in reporting an accident or crime that the first question they are asked is "Did it happen in the Borough or Township?" "I always got a kick our of that," laughed Lt. Servis.

Norman F. Servis
"I have no regrets"

During his career, Lt. Servis has witnessed a number of changes in police work; one of the biggest, he says, is in equipment. "Computers are a big advancement ... it's made it safer Police can call a license number in, and in a matter of seconds they'll know who they are stopping, who the car belongs to, whether it's been stolen."

Another thing, he adds, that he has always felt has been a big problem is cooperation between "all" police departments. "It's so important," he stressed, "but I think it is working its way out

Not only cooperation between police departments, but between police and citizens, is vital, Lt. Servis continued. "In order to combat crime, people have to become involved. Police need as many eyes as they possibly can have. If they're looking and notifying police, it is a great deterrent to crime."

Of his police career, the 56-year-old Servis found it was "fun, interesting and challenging. I've enjoyed it and I have no regrets. But I'm happy to be out."

Lt. Servis was a member of the 1947 Princeton High class, but he left a year early to join the navy As a member of the Shore Patrol, he got his first taste of police work.

Upon leaving the service he worked for a number of years as a plumbers' helper and as an apprentice mason Two university projects he worked on in those days were the Firestone Library and the Ferris-Thompson homes on Western Way

"I like to work with my hands; I've always liked it. I've done it all my life," admits Lt. Servis, who hopes to keep active "johbing around" in his retirement.

Certainly, two things that will receive a lot of attention, he reports, are his golf game (he makes a trip every year for a week of golf as a member nf the Myrtle Beach Club of Princeton) and his one-year-old grandson, Andrew.

Lt. Servis, who recently bought a home and property on Route 27, also has a daughter Sheila, who lives in Princeton and works for Johnson & Johnson in Skillman. His only son, Norman Jr., 30, went into an unexplained coma in his home the day before Thanksgiving and died two weeks later. "We still don't know the reason; doctors can't seem to pin it down," recalled Lt. Servis sorrowfully.

"It takes a lot out of you. It just knocks you right down. That's why I want to get back into work," he said.

Recently, someone rear-ended his parked car, causing $2,000 in damage. "When," asked a sympathetic friend, "are you going to get a break?"

"I just did," Lt. Servis smiled. "I just broke my wrist." He slipped on a patch of ice while walking beside his home, and ended up in a cast for six weeks.

No doubt Mr. Servis is hoping that retirement is not quite as eventful.

SPRAY OILS ARE BACK - with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Oil spreys for the control of insects are back in the limelight They ere one of the oldest insecticides Mixtures containing coal oil wore used as far back as the 1860's Oil based sprays were in common use in the '20's but with not always predictable results Modern chemistry plus research has overcome the old hazards and improve effectiveness of to d y refin d oil Oil sprays b th summer and winter kill the egg f m es aphids, cankerworms webworms and leaf hopper and control some adults, too Kill is accomplished by the deposit of a minute amount of paraffin that interferes with the breathing or gas exchange of the egg or insect. Spray oils have advantages over some of the chemical insecticides. They are non-poisonous to people, pets and birds. They ere rapidly biodegradable, nearly odorless and have no lasting effect on the environment. As with all sprays, though, there are limitations Plants suffering from drought may be sensitive and a few varieties should be avoided Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for your Dormant Oil cessories. According to Mr. Goldsmith, the prices will be "competitive to very expensive."

The Naragansett, headquartered in Newport, R.I., will take the space previously eyed by Saladalley. It will have a second Nassau Street entrance, to the left (as you face the building) of the Polo entrance.

The Princeton store, which will cover 2,400 square feet, will be the chain's 22nd location. Based on what was seen in its Georgetown store, the shop will feature competitively priced sportswear with an emphasis on vivid colors and natural fabrics.

Saladalley, a moderate-priced soup-and-salad restaurant headquartered in Philadelphia, had hoped to locate in the building. But a dispute between the Zoning and Planning Boards centering on who had the right to issue a use variance threatened to drag on for months.

"Time is a factor," said John H. Dumont, a partner of Bellows Building Associates, Ltd., owner of The Bellows Building. "We want to move forward to get the building open for the community and for the investors."

The third retail store, which is located in "The Treehouse" and has a Moore Street entrance, has not yet been rented. The building's owners are looking toward having a gift or specialty shop take the space.

In any event, it is unlikely that it will be leased to an institution. "We have turned down banks, brokers and realtors in favor of retail stores, which add to the traditional character of downtown Princeton," said Eric R. Keller, managing general partner of Bellows Building Associates.

The four apartments above the stores will remain, continuing the residence/retail mix that is a hallmark of downtown Princeton.

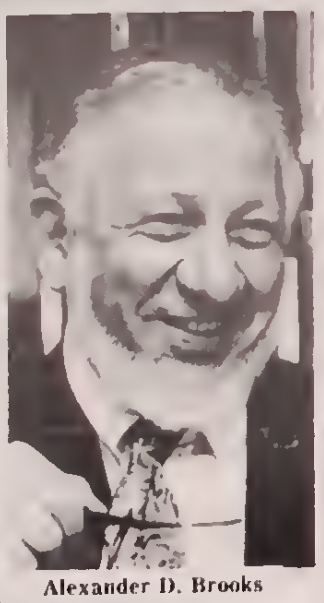
Lawyers and psychiatrists, often viewed as adversaries in aiding the mentally ill, are gaining a better understanding of each other's roles, thanks largely to a Rutgers law professor who sees the new, cooperative effort as a boon for mental patients.

Alexander D. Brooks, 16 Nelson Ridge Road, Hopewell Township, distinguished professor of law at Rutgers School of Law in Newark, plays a mediator's role in conflicts that have arisen from the legal profession's relatively new interest in establishing and protecting the rights of the mentally ill.



Alexander D. Brooks

While legal and psychiatric polemics rage, Prof. Brooks' writing, seminars and speeches attempt to reconcile the two powerful professions that have been at loggerheads over this issue for at least the last two decades.

"One of my important missions is to explain to psychiatrists that the law is more reasonable and less threatening than they are often led to believe. To lawyers, I try to explain the problems faced by the mental health professionals, so that lawyers' remedies for abuse will be more realistic and less counterproductive," Prof. Brooks says.

Recently honored by the State University of New Jersey, which named him the Justice Joseph Weintraub Professor of Law, Prof. Brooks points out that the mentally ill have been a seriously neglected class of persons whom society has always "swept under the rug."

In earlier centuries, the mentally ill were kept in chains, he says, and, later, straitjackets were substituted for chains. Leather "chains" are still used in some institutions, but, the professor says, much more sophisticated restraints, in the form of powerful drugs, are now widely used to control psychotic patients. "This makes the legal problems of today far more complex than in the past because patient abuses are not as obvious," he says.

Prof. Brooks' research shows that despite the relative newness of the field, aspects of mental health law have existed for years. The broad field covers not only how psychiatric and psychological factors relate to matters of law, but also how the law impacts on the mental health system.

As recently as 10 years ago, Prof. Brooks says, public opinion generally favored releasing most mentally ill persons from hospital settings. There were offers of job placement, community group homes and a general public concession that society must "put up with" a certain amount of distress in exchange for granting individual rights to mentally ill persons.

The current U.S. Supreme Court, however, is permitting more conservative forces to make the law less liberal, and there now is a swing toward more restrictiveness, Prof. Brooks observes.

"As the public becomes more and more uneasy with the notion of mentally ill persons being at large in the community, people tend to resist laws that protect individual rights and lean toward formulation of laws that are more protective of society," he says.

Within recent years, due in large part to Prof. Brooks' work, mental health law has dramatically expanded — emphasizing the civil rights of the mentally ill who often are as incapacitated in the community as they are in the "chemical straitjackets" of mental hospitals, says the Rutgers professor.

With lawyers leading the way, new legal concepts have been devised to protect the mentally ill. One of those critical concepts is the right to demand or refuse treatment. Another is procedural safeguards against inappropriate involuntary civil commitment, the method used by our society to confine those termed "dangerously ill." Such issues are of particular concern to Prof. Brooks.

He cites instances where a person acquitted by reason of insanity may, in certain states, be confined to a maximum security hospital, regardless of whether the criminal charge was for a violent physical crime or for a property crime like attempting to steal a coat.

At the Rockefeller Center at Bellagio, Italy, where he was a Scholar in Residence two years ago, Prof. Brooks began work on a major book that he hopes will be the peak of his broad career in mental health law. The book is a study of the impact of law on the mental health system over the last quarter century.

"No one has dreamed of 'pulling it all together,' but that is exactly what I hope to do in this latest piece of work, which will take several years to complete," the law professor says.

funds will be coming from. Several years ago voters approved a $300 million bond issue for bridges and infrastructure.

He also talks about applying for federal funds; the usual ratio for roadway projects is 90 percent federal to 10 percent state. However, William P. Starr, who will present testimony on the historic significance of the area surrounding the Friends Meeting and the Princeton Battlefield Park in the forthcoming Mount Laurel suit, thinks that the fact that the bridge lies within a nationally registered Historic District that is registered in the state, will mean that federal funds can not be used.

The Stony Brook bridge was built in 1792, Mr. Starr notes, when it replaced the one destroyed during the Battle of Princeton. It is a stone bridge, comparable to the bridge on Mercer Road that also crosses Stony Brook. Scheduled for realignment several years ago, that bridge was instead strengthened and preserved after Princeton residents objected strongly.

Other bridge projects in Princeton listed by the DOT include $1 million earmarked for rehabilitation work on the bridge over Harry's Brook on Route 27 in Princeton Township. Again, engineering is scheduled for 1985 and 1986 with construction for 1987.

Also on the state plan is the replacement of some 10 bridges over the Delaware & Raritan Canal scheduled from 1985 to 1988. The Harrison Street, Washington Road and Alexander Road bridges are included in this $8 million project.

Towpath Trees

At the invitation of Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, the D&R Canal Commission and the Water Authority will hold a public hearing in Princeton at the Valley Road building on the restoration of the towpath. No date has been set yet, but officials estimated that the dredging of this portion of the Canal would be complete by early summer and water back in the Canal by July.

Discussion on Tuesday revealed what Mrs. Penick described as a reluctance on the part of the Water Authority to replace all the trees cut down along the section from the Millstone aquaduct to Kingston. The state prefers to cluster groups of trees, she learned, and to leave large gaps of open space in between. This is partly at the request of the University, she learned, and partly so that tree roots will not intrude into the new slurry wall that is being placed in the middle of the towpath to strengthen that narrow embankment.

But Mrs. Penick suggested that smaller species of trees be used, if this is a concern. The Authority did agree, she said, to replace a solid band of trees along those portions of the towpath where Route 1 can be seen from across the lake.

The surface of the towpath will be a mix of clay and sand, she learned, somewhat like that part of the towpath north of Kingston. She asked that a clay that is local to this part of New Jersey and not red clay be used. Mrs. Penick said she thought there was "a certain amount of fudging" over the contractual obligation to replace the 50 trees cut down in Turning Basin Park, but the contractor did agree to work with Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser and Township residents on the restoration of this area.

Mrs. Penick feels the blame for these trees being cut down lies as much with the contractor as with the state agencies, the Water Authority and the Department of Parks who sent a superintendent with an outdated map to identify trees to be cut, unaware that the land belonged to the Township and not to the state.

Princeton environmentalists attending Monday's meeting contended that the dredging could have been accomplished with smaller machinery that would not have necessitated the removal of the trees. "Wet" dredging carried out in other sections of the 32-mile long canal involved cutting only a few trees to permit access of dredging machinery into the canal. In addition, there was a problem of where to dump the dredge spoil.

Others who attended Monday's meeting say that the fact that so many state agencies were involved may have contributed to a lack of communication and a lack of clear-cut authority which resulted in one agency not knowing what the next was about to do. They cite, for instance, the Department of Building Construction (DBC), which lets the contracts to the lowest bidder and is concerned more with getting the job done than with environmental concerns, which is the focus of the DEP.

After Monday's meeting, Commissioner Hughey told Mrs. Penick that one change his department would implement is that construction in the D&R Canal Park would no longer be carried out by the DBC but by the Department of Parks.

Tax Help Available

Community representatives who have been trained by the Internal Revenue Service are providing free assistance in five area locations to those who need help in preparing federal and state income tax forms.

In Princeton, assistance will be provided at the Public Library every Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. and at the Senior Resource Center on Spruce Circle every Monday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Representatives will also be available at the Pennington Public Library by appointment.

In Lawrenceville tax help will be provided at Quakerbridge Mall Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 3. In addition, volunteers will be available at the Rider College Student Center Tuesday and Thursday from noon to 3 p.m.

Although the major thrust of the program is to provide assistance to the low income, handicapped and elderly, the volunteers will assist any taxpayer with a relatively simple tax return including Form 1040-EZ, Form 1040-A and Form 1040 with Schedules A and B.

LOOKING FOR A BUILDING LOT?

Not everyone wants to buy an existing home. Some prefer to buy land and build their dream house on it. If you are worried about building lot availability - don't. There is land to build on nationally and locally.

Want to talk big figures? The total land area in the United States amounts to 2.26 BILLION acres. This can be broken down into 703 million acres of forest, 587 million acres of grassland and ranges, 471 million acres of farmland and 345 million acres of urban land, deserts and swamps. Sixty percent of all the land is privately owned, 33% is owned by the federal government and 7% by state and local governments. Of all this land, only 5% is devoted to housing, manufacturing, shopping and transportation. Even though our population has tripled since 1900, 95% of all the available land is still undeveloped. That's a lot of land.

If you are looking for a building lot in this area, we may have fine lots available in various price ranges. Let's talk about it.

After 40 Busy Years of Service to the Community Ralph Hulit Retires as President of Hulit's Shoes

Ralph Hulit retired last month as president of Hulit's Shoes, Inc. It marked the end of a 40-year career by one of Princeton's better known merchants, one that was heavily interspersed with service to the community.

Helping others is nothing new to Mr. Hulit; the habit was thrust upon him four decades ago when he was ready to be discharged from the U.S. Navy at the end of World War II.

Near the end of the war, just after the invasion of Okinawa, his ship had spread eight miles of heavy anti-submarine and torpedo nets. Ralph watched as Japanese kamikaze pilots zeroed in on their favorite targets: U.S. ammunition ships.

"It was just like in the movies," he recalls. "It was a great experience — if you lived through it."

Not long after, the war ended; time to resume lives that had been interrupted. Ralph, who had married in 1940 and had a son Ralph Jr. before joining the navy, remembers it as a time when "we all wanted to come home."

For Mr. Hulit, however, a hitch developed. He had to stay behind. The ordnance seaman had also become an expert in expediting papers.

"I was helping process papers, helping people get out," he said. "They locked me in. I had more points than the guys I was sending back. That hurt."

Mr. Hulit finally made it back to Princeton, the town where he was born and raised. He returned to the shoe store where he had worked during high school, the one founded by his father at the start of the Depression in 1929.

His career has spanned Princeton's transformation from a quiet university town where nothing much happened in the summer to the beehive of activity it is today. As merchant-servant, he was not only a witness but an active participant.

PLACES SEEN, PLACES TO GO: Ralph Hulit, who retired last month as head of Hulit's Shoes on Nassau Street, and his wife, Mary, a retired school teacher, plan to spend a large part of their time in a favorite pastime -- traveling. More on Mr. Hulit and his twin careers as merchant and public servant on this page.

If you knew Ralph Hulit, or were a customer, you might have learned along the way that his father sold shoes to Albert Einstein, who wore Bass moccasin tie shoes — without socks — all year round. ("He was a great walker," recalls Ralph.) Or that he fitted the "Father of the Atomic Bomb," J. Robert Oppenheimer, and his family.

A visitor on more than one occasion was Margaret Hamilton, who had a niece in Princeton, and who played the Wicked Witch in the film "The Wizard of Oz." Once when a group of Middle School students were in the store, Ralph asked them if they remembered the Wicked Witch? "Well, she's in the store now," he told them. "Can we get her autograph?" they all wanted to know.

His wife, Mary, tells of an occasion when a woman came up and spoke to them. "Why didn't you introduce me?" Mrs. Hulit complained. "Because," replied Ralph, "I don't know her name. But I know she wears a 7B."

There are scores of shoe anecdotes, but how many know Ralph Hulit served a year (1963) on Borough Council? Was a member of the committee that brought the Princeton Recreation Department here, and as Borough liaison to the Recreation Board, chaired a raucous and overflowing public meeting when fees for the new pool complex were first announced? A fee structure was ultimately worked out to the satisfaction of everyone, including pool scholarships for those who couldn't pay. "People wanted it all for free," says Ralph. For his part, "The meetings were getting longer and longer. He was about to lose his happy home," recalls his wife.

Because of his active role in the Merchants Association, he was asked to be a director of the fledgling Nassau Savings and Loan Association. At the time it had a small office in the bank building on the corner of Witherspoon and Nassau, and two employees.

Ralph served as president of Nassau Savings for 11 years and was chairman of the board for 17. He is still associated with the firm today.

Since 1952, Mr. Hulit has been associated with the Princeton volunteer fire department as a member of Hook & Ladder Company on Harrison Street. His father had been a fireman in his day, he said, and his two sons are members with him today, Ralph Jr. having served as Chief for one year. Ralph has been president and a trustee of Hook & Ladder but as for chief ... "Too busy doing other things," he said.

One alarm Mr. Hulit will never forget came on February 7, 1974, at 6:29 a.m. (he still remembers the exact minute) when police reported a major fire in progress at Hulit's shoe store. "My heart was pounding," he recalls. He raced to the store to direct firemen how to get in and where to attack the fire.

Thick brick walls prevented the building from collapsing, but the interior was gutted. Fortunately, it was sound enough to rebuild, and while the year-long renovation proceeded, Hulit's Shoes occupied a vacant store on Witherspoon Street where the Athenian Restaurant is now.

After the fire, 45 feet were added to the rear of Hulit's for a warehouse and the interior was extensively remodeled.

In another area of service, Mr. Hulit says he has "done a little Church work." He is an Elder in the Nassau Presbyterian Church and has served on the church's personnel and music committees. "Once you're ordained an elder, you're always an elder," he smiles. His wife is a Deacon.

Down Memory Lane. Hulit's Shoes began as Hulit and Harris on Nassau Street, where Allen's is now. Mr. Harris was a silent partner, a pharmacist who worked in a drug store which later became Thorne's. He was bought out seven years later by Mr. Hulit's father.

Next stop was the Bickford Building at 118 Nassau, where the Woolworth store is now.

When Palmer Square was completed in 1939, Hulit's moved to 140 Nassau, its present location.

Extensive Changes. Over the years, Mr. Hulit has witnessed extensive changes in the shoe business. Foremost, has been the influx of foreign shoes, forcing several American manufacturers to close their doors, and the switch to athletic footwear.

"Sneakers are a big item for all sexes," acknowledges Mr. Hulit. "Maybe 75 percent of kids today start to walk in sneakers," he estimates. "They seem to walk better in sneakers than shoes. They're more flexible and they don't slip on floors."

The change has hurt the job market. "You can buy the low end of sneakers in grocery stores," observes Mr. Hulit, adding, "You have to keep up; you have to put in more than the other guy." Hulit's has survived because of its service and expertise.

"Stores like us ... you fit 'em; you don't throw 'em at people," he says. "A lot don't have the training or the experience. You've got to fit a pair of shoes; you have to know something about the product."

We've Been Fortunate. "We have a nice clientele. We've been fortunate to have a lot of nice people to take care of. They seem to come back."

When former customers come back to visit parents, the whole family come back to the store together, especially if they moved to a small town, Mr. Hulit states.

"You don't develop that kind of rapport with people in ten years." Then, un-

Two Princeton Women to Play Many Parts In McCarter Theatre's "Under Milk Wood"

"I think of Under Milk Wood as the Welsh Our Town."

So says Georgine Hall, Princeton resident and professional actress, who will appear in the Dylan Thomas classic, Under Milk Wood, in its McCarter Theatre showing from March 6 to 24.

Our Town is an apt reference, because this story is about two women of "our town" — Princeton — both of whom will be on stage in Under Milk Wood.

This is about Georgine Hall and Mary Martello.

PRINCETON PERFORMERS: Georgine Hall, left, will be playing different and older roles in the McCarter Theatre production of "Under Milk Wood" than she did 25 years ago in a Princeton Community Players production of the same Dylan Thomas "play for voices." Mrs. Hall and Mary Martello, another Princeton resident, take time out from rehearsal to pose with director Robert Lanchester. "Under Milk Wood" will be performed at McCarter from March 6 through 24. (Cliff Moore photo)

News of The THEATRES

Both are enthusiastic about Dylan Thomas's "Play for Voices" and happy to be acting in it. Under Milk Wood recounts a full day in the life of Llaregub, a small Welsh village. It presents the dreams and doings of some threescore villagers — to be played by ten actors.

"It does what I like so much in dramatic literature," says Ms. Hall. "It shows people as they are, but with a sense of life continuing. And the language — Dylan Thomas was a good poet, might have been great if he had lived longer — it is wonderful language to be a part of. It carries you; it does your work for you."

Multiple Roles. Ms. Martello uses almost identical words in speaking of the language of Under Milk Wood. "It is a joy," she says, "with its rhythm, its life. So much is already there — it works for you."

Mary Martello portrays four different women in the play. This will be her fifth McCarter production, and in all of them she has played multiple parts: Judevine, The Dining Room, The Dawns Are Quiet Here, Foustus in Hell, and now Under Milk Wood. She smiles as she says, "I'm looking forward to a time when I'll have a single character." In the coming play she will be Polly Garter, Mrs. Pugh, Mrs. Willy Nilly, Bessie Bighead, and a neighbor or two.

Georgine Hall will be playing Mrs. Ogmore-Pritchard, Mrs. Butcher Beynon, Mrs. Utah Watkins, Mary Ann Sailors, as well as a number of gossipy neighbors. Twenty-five years ago, with the Princeton Community Players, she was in the same play but doing mostly younger characters — "except for Mary Ann Sailors.

"I found it easier then to play the part of this old lady than I do now. Perhaps she's closing in on the real me. She's only a half step away from me now, and it's more difficult. It's interesting!"

She is particularly happy to be in this company of Under Milk Wood. She says, "The last time I played at McCarter was when Michael Kahn was artistic director. Nagle Jackson has kindly invited me once or twice, but each time I had another commitment. It's important to me, especially now that I am older, to be with a good group — not only professionally good but personally good. This is a fine company to be in."

Dissimilar yet instinctively alike were the paths that brought these two to be co-actors in Under Milk Wood. Ms. Martello grew up in Michigan. She started taking voice lessons at the age of seven and sang at various functions including a three-year stint on an educational TV program. Gradually her interest shifted from music to theater. She became a company member of Michigan's Boarshead Theater, and acted in dinner theater in Iowa and Indiana. When her husband's business took them to Virginia, she joined Theater Four, a touring company which did both children's and adult drama.

After moving to Princeton in the fall of 1982 Ms. Martello worked for a while with the Light Opera of Manhattan, but the demands of performing in New York and running a family in Princeton were too great.

The next summer she auditioned for NewStage at Intime and appeared in Bus Stop, Talking With, and The March of the Falsettos. Nagle Jackson saw her and invited her to McCarter. She also did a one-act play with the Princeton Rep Company; performed in John Brown's Body at the Princeton Inn College Theater (mostly men's parts including Abraham Lincoln); and made a hit acting and singing in Theatre Intime's Dead Giveaway.

PHS to Community Players. Georgine Hall grew up in Princeton. The writer of this piece remembers seeing her in a high school production of Our Town. He also recalls vividly one of the high points in Princeton Community Players history when Georgine played Mary Stuart in Maxwell Anderson's Mary of Scotland. This was 1958.

Ms. Hall credits much of her later success to her experience with Princeton's Summer Intime in the late 50's and early 60's. "We had quite a group of stars," she says — "later stars like Philip Minor, Peter Falk, George Segal. Those were great summers, and we did fine work too. But I guess only when you're young do you have that energy — to do a Saint Joan and get away with it in a week, because you don't know you can't."

Ms. Hall has been a professional for seven and a half years. Asked what she has done most recently, she responds, "Most recently, at the Pittsburgh Playhouse doing Shaw's Misalliance, directed by Philip Minor. Before that, 'Night, Mother at the Guthrie in Minneapolis. That was a great experience for me, a chance to do a very difficult role, and a leading role, in a top-flight theater.

Before that, standing in and playing 'Night, Mother on Broadway. Before that, another tour to Australia with the Actors Theatre of Louisville. Before that, the Australian tour. Before that, with George Scott in Present Laughter. He was wonderful to work for, he was the director and the lead, a great, great actor."

Under Milk Wood runs at McCarter Theatre from March 6 through 24. Tickets are $7.50 to $19.50 and can be purchased by calling 452-5200, noon to six p.m. Monday through Saturday.

PREMIERES SET

By Princeton Ballet. World premieres by two young American choreographers will highlight the program to be presented by The Princeton Ballet when the company returns to McCarter Theatre for a single performance on Wednesday, March 13, at 8.

The first premiere, by Marjorie Mussman, is entitled "Lord Byron-Don Juan." It is a dramatic work for 12 dancers, based on the life of the poet, and set to an original musical score by the choreographer's husband, composer Jonathan Hancock. Ms. Mussman was awarded a National Endowment Choreographer Fellowship for the creation of her new ballet.

The second new work is entitled "Between Friends" by Helen Douglas, and is a lyrical work utilizing the first movement of a Prokofiev duet for cello and piano. Ms.

'LION IN WINTER'

At Hopewell Playhouse. A professional cast of performers from New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia have been brought together for the Off-Broadstreet Dessert Theatre production of "The Lion in Winter" opening Friday for a four-weekend run at the Hopewell playhouse.

A pseudo-historical comedy-drama, "The Lion in Winter" by James Goldman is a tale of funny and melodramatic incidents that, according to the history books, might have occurred at a Christmastime gathering of a feuding royal family.

Ronald Platt of North Brunswick will be seen as the lusty King Henry II; Susan Dewey of Medford, as his devious Queen Eleanor; and Patrick F. McDade of Philadelphia, Robert Kelly of Drexel, Pa., and Bruce Gislar of New York City as their sons: the surly Richard (later called the Lion-hearted), the crafty Geoffrey, and the petulant teen-ager John (who 32 years later had to sign the Magna Carta at Runnymede).

HISTORICAL INTRIGUE: Henry II (Ronald Platt) and Eleanor of Aquitaine (Susan Dewey) can hear the plotting through the walls in "The Lion in Winter" at the Off-Broadstreet Dessert Theatre in Hopewell.

Karmae Cipriotti (Alais) of Runnemede will appear as the French princess Henry is loath to give up as his mistress merely because she is betrothed to his son Richard. Matthew H. Wright of Princeton (Philip) is the King of France who has come to insist on this marriage and be otherwise meddlesome.

At the beginning of the play, Henry is 50 years old and Eleanor, dripping malice over many resentments, has been momentarily released for a yuletide court from the English castle where Henry has kept her locked up for years.

Bruce Curless is directing this collection of ingenious medieval plots overlaid with modern drawing-room gloss. Performances of "The Lion in Winter" are Thursday through Saturday, March 8 through 30 with dessert at 7 p.m. and curtain at 8 p.m. Sunday performances are March 17 and 24 with dessert and curtain an hour earlier. Admission is $12.50 with group rates available. For reservations, contact Off-Broadstreet Dessert Theatre box office, 5 South Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell, telephone 466-2766.

'TWELVE ANGRY JURORS'

Set by Community Players. "Twelve Angry Jurors," adapted from the television show, "Twelve Angry Men" by Reginald Rose, will be presented by the Princeton Community Players at the Mill Hill Playhouse, Front and Montgomery Streets, Trenton, for three weekends beginning Friday, March 15. Remaining dates are March 16, 17, 22, 23, 24, 29 and 30, all at 8:30 p.m.

An earlier adaptation was titled "Twelve Angry Women." The current production, directed by Rip Pellaton, will have a jury made up of nine men and three women. It takes place in the jury room immediately after the judge has terminated a trial for murder, and it shows that all the drama does not necessarily take place in the courtroom.

Beginning with an informal ballot resulting in an 11-to-1 split among the jurors, tempers flare and violence is threatened before an agreement is finally reached.

The 12 jurors will be played by Neal Cronce, Chip Gentles, Mark Lee, Charles Leeder, Jim Lewis, Marian Litz, Ruth Markoe, Herbert McAneny, Allen Rowe, Ellen Volante, Philip Weisman and Buzz Whitall. The stage manager is Steve Rosen.

Tickets are $6 and may be reserved by phoning 921-6314 or 989-3038.

ORIGINAL PLAY DUE

At Acting Studio. Incubus, an original theater piece by a Princeton University senior, will open Friday at 8 at the Acting Studio, 185 Nassau Street. A production of the Program in Theater Dance, the play, written and directed by Talvin Wilks '85, will continue March 9 and 10, and again March 14-16.

Incubus explores contemporary American racial and sexual tensions. Twelve actors take turns portraying four main archetypes: the dominant white male, the flirtatious white female, the powerful black male and the nurturing black female. Scenes move from the old South, to an upper class bedroom to a city street.

The play moves toward an exorcising of stereotypes that keep people from seeing each other as individuals. The exorcism takes the form of a ritual with song, dance and magic as important elements.

Tickets are $3 for adults, $2 for students. Reservations may be made by phoning 452-3676 weekdays.

OPERA STAR DUE

In Concert Monday, Metropolitan opera baritone Sherrill Milnes will appear in the Virtuosi in Recital series of the Princeton University Concerts on Monday at 8 in McCarter Theatre.

Highlights of his 1984-85 season include Iago in "Otello," as well as a new production of Simon Boccanegra at the Metropolitan, "Ernani" with the San Francisco Opera, operatic appearances in Vienna and Berlin, and numerous recitals across the country.

Jon Spong, accompanist for Mr. Milnes since 1964, is a private vocal coach in New York City. His multifaceted career includes numerous appearances as an organ recitalist and active involvement as a published composer, arranger, and editor of organ music.

For his Princeton program, Mr. Milnes will sing Brahms' "Vier ernste Gesaenge," works by Benedetto Marcello, Mozart, in arias: "Qui donc commande" from Henry VIII by Saint-Saens, and "Avant de quitter ces lieux" from Faust by Charles Gounod, and five contemporary songs by Josephine McGill, Aaron Copland, Hermann Frederic Loehr, Alice Jordan and Francesco Santoliquido.

Tickets are available at the McCarter Theatre box office, 452-5200.

PIANO RECITAL SET

At Choir College, Pianist Eric Houghton will present a recital Saturday at 8:30 in Bristol Chapel on the Westminster Choir college campus.

Mr. Houghton is a recent graduate in piano performance at Westminster Choir College who was invited to remain as an artist faculty member of the Westminster Conservatory. He has participated in numerous competitions, advancing to finalist and semifinalist in two sponsored by the American Music Scholarship Association. The concert is in preparation for his entry into this year's Young Keyboard Artists Association International Competition.

The program will include works by Bach, Mozart, Prokofiev, Chopin and Brahms. For information call 921-7104.

NEW ORLEANS JAZZ

At Dillon Gym. The Preservation Hall Jazz Band from New Orleans will return to Princeton University's Dillon Gymnasium on Saturday, March 16, at 8. The annual concert is sponsored by McCarter Theatre.

For more than a dozen years, the venerable musicians of Preservation Hall have brought to Princeton audiences original New Orleans jazz, played by many of the same men who originated it. The musicians include many faces familiar from the Band's past visits, including clarinetist Willie Humphrey, his brother Percy on trumpet, banjo master Narvin Henry Kimball, Frank Demond on trombone, Frank Parker on drums, and Preservation Hall founder Allan Jaffee on tuba.

Tickets are $7, $8.50, $9, $9.50 and $10, and can be purchased by calling McCarter's box office at 452-5200.

MUSIC OF IRELAND

From The Chieftains. The Chieftains, interpreters of traditional Irish music, will return to the stage of McCarter Theatre for their annual spring concert appearance on Monday, March 18, at 8.

For two decades, The Chieftains have uncovered a wealth of traditional Irish music, making it their own. In addition to their 13 record albums, they have performed with stars like Eric Clapton, Van Morrison, and James Galway, and in 1982, opened on tour for The Rolling Stones. The group broke all attendance records for the largest live audience ever when they played for Pope John Paul II and 1,350,000 people in Dublin's Phoenix Park.

Performance of Four Superb Vocal Soloists, Highlights Final Concerts of Bach Cantatas

The final concerts of the Tercentenary Festival of Bach Cantatas were presented on Sunday afternoon and evening in Alexander Hall. This festival, jointly sponsored by Westminster Choir College and Princeton University, featured the 40-voice Westminster Choir, the Bach Festival Orchestra, and four superb vocal soloists, conducted in Sunday's performance by Mordechai Scheinkman, the new conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra.

Each of the cantatas performed in the program had some salient characteristics which were of particular interest. Cantata 198, Lass Furstin, lass noch einen strahl, is also referred to as the Trauer Ode. Written in 1727 on a text by Johann Christoph Gottsched, it was used for a memorial service on the death of Queen Christiane Eberhardine of Saxony. The work's orchestration was noteworthy for its use of violas da gamba as obbligato instruments. In Cantata 187, Es wartet Alles auf dich, Bach wrote an obbligato for oboe which is among the most beautiful pieces written for that instrument. And the form of the last work of the program, Cantata 129, Gelobet sie der Herr, was derived from the five stanzas of the Lutheran hymn upon which it was based.

The vocal soloists for these performances have all made appearances professionally in recitals, oratorios, or operas. Soprano Lise Messier sang with a pleasant tone and well-defined diction, although the lowest notes of her range were sometimes overshadowed by the instrumentalists. The richly mellow voice of mezzo-soprano Mary Wescott brought great beauty to the alto arias, especially in Cantata 129. Here her warm sound was much enhanced by the oboe d'amore obbligato. James Beal's splendid tenor voice had a strong tone which was neither thin nor brassy at the top. His German diction was particularly good. Bass David Hamilton sang his arias with a sound which was light in body yet fully resonant and colorful.

The Westminster choir, prepared by director Joseph Flummerfelt and assistant conductor Frauke Haasemann, produced a choral tone which was perfectly blended. The dark colors of the first chorus of Cantata 198 seemed to embody the sombre spirit of the work, while the choruses of Cantata 129 were given a character of joyousness well suited to a hymn of adoration and praise. The choir also demonstrated its rhythmic exactness in spinning out the motoric melismas in the opening chorus of Cantata 187.

The Bach Festival Orchestra was an important credit to this fine series of concerts. This ensemble contained many excellent soloists whose obbligati provided exquisite backdrops to the work of the vocalists. Several of these deserve special mention. Mollie Glazer and Harold Lieberman played the violas da gamba, whose silvery threads of sound were a delicate contrast to Wescott's voice in the alto aria in Cantata 198. Jayn Rosenfeld, who has appeared in concert with the Chamber Symphony of Princeton, lent the grace of her pearl-like tone to arias in Cantatas 198 and 129. Oboist Mark Hill played a marvelously phrased obbligato in the soprano aria of Cantata 187, and Virginia Brewer's work on the oboe d'amore was a fitting complement to Wescott's aria in Cantata 129.

The enjoyment of this performance was greatly enhanced by the informative program notes written by Bach expert William H. Scheide, who was also instrumental in planning and implementing this important series of concerts.

Music in Princeton

For their return to McCarter, they will again be joined by the world champion Irish step dancer Michael Flatley, the first American winner of the World Step Dancing Championship held each year in Ireland.

Although only 25, Mr. Flatley has won 300 trophies and 1,000 medals, is an accomplished flutist and Golden Gloves boxer, and was the North American step dancing champion for seven successive years.

Tickets are $8.50 - $11, and can be purchased by calling the McCarter Theatre box office at 452-5200. Major credit cards are welcome.

CONCERT SUNDAY

By Madrigal Group. Princeton University's Madrigal Society will give a concert on Sunday at 3 in Alexander Hall. Sponsored by the Friends of Music, the concert is free.

In its ninth year as an a capella singing group, the Madrigal Society won first prize in the university division of the National Choral Festival in Baltimore in 1982. The group has toured extensively throughout the East Cost, including New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C.

For Sunday's concert, Conductor Daniel Steinert will lead the group in works by Monteverdi, Palestrina, Lassus, Widmann, and Britten.

TWO JAZZ STYLES

In Concert at Alexander. Vibraphonist Gary Burton and jazz pianist Chick Corea will perform in Richardson Auditorium, Alexander Hall, on Sunday, March 17. The concert was originally scheduled for March 30 but had to be changed.

Burton and Corea have been playing together for more than a decade. Their partnership has evolved from synchronized duets to dabbling in European classical elements, to its own genre, a personal framework for all kinds of musical threads, incorporating the best elements of contemporary jazz with classical and latin influences

Their latest collaboration, Lyric Suite for Sextet, was recently named one of the ten best popular music albums by the New York Times. Gary Burton is said to be the foremost vibraphonist of our times, and Chick Corea is well known as a jazz pianist, composer and founder of "Return to Forever."

Ticket information for the March 17 concert is available at the McCarter Theatre box office, 452-5200. Visa, Mastercard and American Express cards are welcome.

30's HOLLYWOOD INFLUENCE: "The Heart Is Quicker than the Eye," a lithograph by Ann Chernow, is part of a series at Full House Gallery, echoing the Hollywood view of women's lives in the 30's and 40's.

ART

ARCHITECTURE 1450-1950 At Firestone Library. Although the primary appeal of the current exhibition in the Gould Gallery will be to students of architecture, there is much to interest a wider audience as well. Many of the books on display can be enjoyed on a purely visual level. Certain of the architectural renderings are works of art in themselves, most notably the elegant circular configurations of the Val-de-Grace, a 17th-century Paris church, and the starkly linear rendering of a Frank Lloyd Wright prairie-style interior. The exhibition also presents many fine examples of illustrative and design elements, copper engravings, woodcuts and a variety of calligraphic styles.

Among the earliest volumes on display is Marcus Vitruvius's handbook on classical architecture. This rare volume was the first architectural book to be illustrated, and remained the standard text for more than 200 years. As the influence of classicism traveled in translation from Italy to France, Germany, England and finally to the United States, it also made its way from public buildings to more modest vernacular architecture.

Thus, a 19th-century Philadelphia architect, Alexander Jackson Davis, in a volume on Rural Residences, felt the necessity to improve on "the bald and uninteresting aspect of our houses" by adding italianate towers, bracketed porches, verge-boarded gables and decorated chimney pots in a design for a "cottage-villa" in Weehawken.

Several books feature pull-outs, including one 18th-century English text with an expandable rendering of Westminster Bridge. Another work of interest to non-architects is a memo and sketch book for the re-building of Drury Lane Theatre. The extent of architecture reached into landscaping as well. Many formal gardens featured elaborate architectural elements and one pictured here incorporated a private zoo.

A failed architect of the 17th century, one Batty Langley, apparently had more success turning out How-To books. One of them The Builder's Jewel, was illustrated with step-by-step copper engravings and promised to reduce the complications of classical building "to short and easy rules, made familiar to the meanest capacity."

Hollywood vs. Japan. The Full House Gallery is offering a combined exhibition by two women printmakers that shows little similarity in the artists' approach to their work. Ann Chernow's etchings and lithographs, heavily influenced by the Hollywood movies of the 1930's and 1940's, are thematic depictions of women which are meant to evoke feelings of nostalgia for the era.

There is a dated naturalism in the artist's work, both in style and in content, echoing the social realism of the period. In groups of two, three and more, women are seen in everyday surroundings — sitting at a counter sharing a malted milk, chatting over tea, riding on a train. Faces sometimes vaguely resemble film stars of the era (are those two women on the train really Jennifer Jones and Lucille Ball?)—perhaps a sly suggestion by the artist that women often pattern their looks after certain movie icons.

Margaret Kennard Johnson's restrained prints are more cerebral. Three different approaches, all reflecting the artist's years in Japan, are on view at Full House. The "Discovery" series consists of shimmering splashes of silver deeply embossed in an all-over pattern of small geometric shapes. In "Homages to Ancient Bronzes" each work presents a bulky object whose outline suggests some sort of ceremonial relic. The earth tones used by the artist, together with the deeply incised and richly patterned design elements, create a feeling at once both ancient and strikingly contemporary.

The third in this Japanese-inspired series is "Veils to the Future." While "Homages" suggests bulk and antiquity, the effect of "Veils" is evanescent. Using a palette of the most subtle tones the artist creates gossamer thin veils of pattern woven into spidery networks of intricate relationships.

A unifying feature of all three series is the artist's careful working out of the delicate interplay of pattern on pattern.

Prints in Palladium. The photographs by Margaret Morgan Fisher now on exhibit at The Back Door Gallery are remarkable for their simplicity and clarity. The surprisingly small scale of these photos is a stunning rebuke to those who believe The Big Picture is the best way to achieve dramatic intensity. These exquisite miniatures concentrate the vision, their exceptional depth of field pulling the eye deeply into the picture.

Subjects include simple everyday objects such as clothes hanging on the line, interiors, architectural details, landscapes. There is no wasted space, no extraneous element in any of these tiny frames. Some are arranged still-lifes, in others the photographer has caught a naturally occurring moment in time. "Cemetery, Maine," for instance, is a lovely study in contrast: aged tombstones sagging heavily amidst a field of daisies and Queen Anne's lace. Light is handled to great effect in several atmospheric scenes. Such is the delicate tracery of some of these photographs that they give the illusion of fine pencil drawings or renderings in silver-point.

Ivy Basketball Race Enters Final Weekend, with Tigers Among Five Teams Still in Contention for League Title

The National Football League's Pete Rozelle could not have asked for anything more.

With one weekend of play remaining, any one of five teams could eventually win the Ivy basketball title. With only four teams definitely out of contention, the league has achieved almost total parity (or, if you prefer, total mediocrity). Given the abilities of the eight teams, the latter seems to be a more apt description.

Penn, which appeared to have a lock on things just 10 days ago, has managed to lose twice at home, one defeat administered by the Tigers, 48-46, a week ago Tuesday, and once over the weekend to Yale. That leaves the Quakers just two games ahead (see standings) of a pack of four that includes Columbia, Cornell, Harvard and Princeton.

Yes, Princeton! Incredibly, the Tigers are still in the hunt. Trying desperately to avoid the first losing season here in almost three decades, the Tigers have played themselves back into contention.

Following the two-point triumph over Penn that came with five seconds left, they waited until the last tick of the clock before squeezing by Brown, 58-56, Friday night at Jadwin. The following evening, the Orange and Black allowed itself a little more breathing room in a 65-61 victory over Yale.

So, it all comes down to a final weekend of play in New York City and Ithaca. Both Princeton and Penn will be on the road against Cornell and Columbia. The Tigers will face the Lions first and then move on upstate. Harvard, the other contender, will also be on the road against Brown, Thursday, and Yale, Saturday.

Penn Must Lose Twice. There are several possibilities as to who may finish on top, but Penn must lose to both Cornell and Columbia for any other team to have a shot. The Quakers need only one win to clinch the title; they are assured of no worse than a tie. That may seem easy, but who would have thought they would lose twice at home in their last three games.

The best any of the four teams tied for second can manage is a tie for first, which would necessitate a playoff. By winning twice, Princeton could tie Penn, and possibly Harvard for the title. As many as four teams, Penn, Columbia, Cornell and the Crimson could all finish 9-5.

There are other possibilities as well. The league has had numerous two-team playoffs, but only once, in 1955, have three teams, Penn, Princeton and Columbia, all finished in a deadlock. The Tigers won that playoff.

If a playoff does occur, the league will need to get it out of the way in a hurry, so that the winner can begin the NCAA playoffs. The Ivy champion will play its first round Thursday, March 14.

Another Bullet Dodged. The triumph over Yale brought the Tigers to 11-13 overall, and marked the fourth consecutive game they had to win to avoid a losing season. They must win both this weekend to finish 13-13.

In avenging a two-point loss at New Haven, the Orange and Black never trailed in this one, leading by 27-21 at the half, and by as much as 12, 52-40, late in the contest. The Tigers coasted a bit down the stretch, allowing Yale to close the gap to four at the end.

The game featured the kind of balanced scoring the Tigers will need if they are to continue their streak. Howie Levy and John Thompson both had 14, Dave Orlandini with 10, Joe Scott, nine, and John Smyth and Jay Bubniak, eight apiece.

"We're doing a little better now," Carril commented. "All in all, I'm happy with them, though they make you suffer with missed layups and bad passes."

Bruins Barely Beaten. The Tigers wrote another chapter on their unpredictability this season, when they needed a last second shot by Levy who scored a game-high 17 points (Smyth had 12), to defeat a Brown team, they had whipped by 20 in Providence.

They had also beaten Penn at the Palestra a few days earlier, but this was all past history when they found themselves down by as much as eight points, 21-13, midway through the first half.

The Orange and Black rallied at that point, and held the visitors scoreless for the last 6:27 to take a 31-27 lead into the locker room at the intermission. Any thoughts of a blowout vanished quickly in the second half; the Bruins were clearly in this one until the end.

They came back to take a 51-48 lead with 5:29 to play, and then led 54-52 and 56-54 in the closing minutes. Each time Princeton managed to tie the score, the final time on a long jumper by Aaron Belz. Carril had inserted the 6-5 sophomore into the line-up "on a hunch" when Thompson fouled out with 1:51 left.

That set the stage for the final shot, which Princeton got when it forced a Bruin turnover with 22 seconds remaining. It came from Levy on a perfect bounce pass from Smyth, after Brown's man-to-man defense got caught in a switch that left the 6'2 Mike Waitkus guarding the 6'9 Levy.

His easy left-handed lay-up beat the buzzer by a second and the Bruins by two.

What Might Have Been. Last Tuesday's upset of league-leading Penn in the Palestra gave a good indication of what might have been this season.

The Tigers were on target from the opening tip-off and jumped to early leads as much as 11 points, while a cold-shooting Quaker quintet did little right. With Bubniak hitting his first four shots (he finished with 16 on 8 of 12 shooting), the Tigers led by 26-15 with three minutes left in the half.

At that point they suffered a letdown, and allowed the Red and Blue to climb within five, 26-21, by the intermission. In the second half, the Quakers slowly fought back into contention, finally pulling ahead by 44-42.

But this time, the Tigers did not let one slip away, they fought back to tie at 47 apiece, when Thompson made a great save and fed Levy for an easy basket. Both teams had chances to go ahead in the final minute, but turned the ball over on traveling violations.

Finally, it came down to Smyth's ability to sink both ends of a one-and-one with five seconds to play to provide Princeton's margin of victory. His free throws won it, but it was Bubniak's outside shooting and a fine 20-point performance by Levy that gave the Tigers the chance to win it.

Carril, who has seen it all this season had a wry comment at the end. "All year long we've had the kind of team that self destructed. Tonight we almost did, but we got a little good fortune."

One of the most incredible records of all time in basketball was made by the legendary coach, Adolph Rupp ... Rupp was a major-college coach for 41 YEARS and NEVER had a losing season in all those years ... He coached Kentucky from 1931 to 1972 and in each of those seasons, Kentucky won more games than they lost ... Rupp also still holds the record for winning more total games than any other college basketball coach in history ... He won 875 games in his career.

Here's a sports question that may surprise you ... Which distance is greater — running once around the bases in baseball, or running the full length of a football field from goal line to goal line? ... Answer is the trip around the bases ... It's 90 feet between each base, so a trip around the bases is 360 feet, or 120 yards, while the distance from goal line to goal line on a football field is just 100 yards.

Another Tough Schedule Ahead for Tiger Lacrosse Team

Hoping to Improve Last Year's Disastrous 2-11 Record

Year after year, those associated with Princeton University lacrosse point out with pride that the Tigers play one of the most demanding schedules in the nation.

In 1984, it was the fourth most difficult of all teams playing the sport. Unfortunately, Princeton's record last spring solidly endorsed that fact. The Orange and Black lost its last eight contests, and finished with a 2-11 mark, its worst in many years.

Its Ivy record was a miserable 1-5, with only a 12-11 overtime victory against Yale on the plus side. And most of those 11 losses were not even close.

Teams like basketball and football have scheduled easier opponents in some cases in an attempt to stay competitive, but not lacrosse. The season gets under way this Saturday, and those same 13 teams are still on it, plus a couple of newcomers.

Hofstra, which whipped the Orange and Black, 13-7, in its season opener last March, will again be the first opponent. Action will begin at 2 p.m. on Finney Field, just east of Palmer Stadium.

Coach Jerry Schmidt is guardedly optimistic about his team's chances this spring,

Jerry Rizzieri
Key to Rebuilding Defense

which is a positive sign, considering the uphill battle the Tigers face. He's looking for a stronger attack to score more this spring and alleviate last year's biggest problem. "We couldn't seem to score when it was most needed," Schmidt lamented.

This season might be different. His attack returns intact, and could well be the strongest part of the team. Tri-captain Charlie Stillwell returns for his fourth season as a starter. He was second in scoring last year with 21 points.

Also back is senior Jon Lurie, who notched a team-high 23 points, plus five others, John Donovan, Bill Ellsworth, Dave Kopp, Rick Kirschner and Amiel Bethel.

Tri-captain Bill Donohue leads the returning middies, who will miss David Chang, third in scoring from his midfield position. Aa four-year starter, Donohue has a reputation as one of the best all-around midfielders in the country. Paul Faber, Rob Jiranek, Todd Rizzieri, Tom Stackpole and Steve Boyle all had plenty of playing time last year.

Junior Chris Corcoran who split the goaltending duties with Otey Marshall, who has graduated, will give Schmidt plenty of experience between the pipes. His back-up will be another junior, Tim Krongard.

That's the good news; the bad news is that five of six starters graduated from the defense, and plenty of rebuilding is needed there. The key to the team's success will be how quickly Schmidt can find players to fit around all-American Jerry Rizzieri, the lone returnee.

John Pederson, who saw some duty last year is back, and additional help should come from sophomores Matt Atkinson, Ed Sondey, Jim Brouner and Alex Hogg. The Tigers are also looking to a quarter of freshmen.

First year men Rob Goodwin, Wade Haddad, Andy Haynes and John Wallenstrom should all contribute as they gain experience.

The Hofstra contest will be the first of four at home for the Tigers. Wednesday, March 13, they will meet UMBC at 3 p.m., New Hampshire, Saturday, March 16, at 2, and FDU, Tuesday, March 19 at 2.

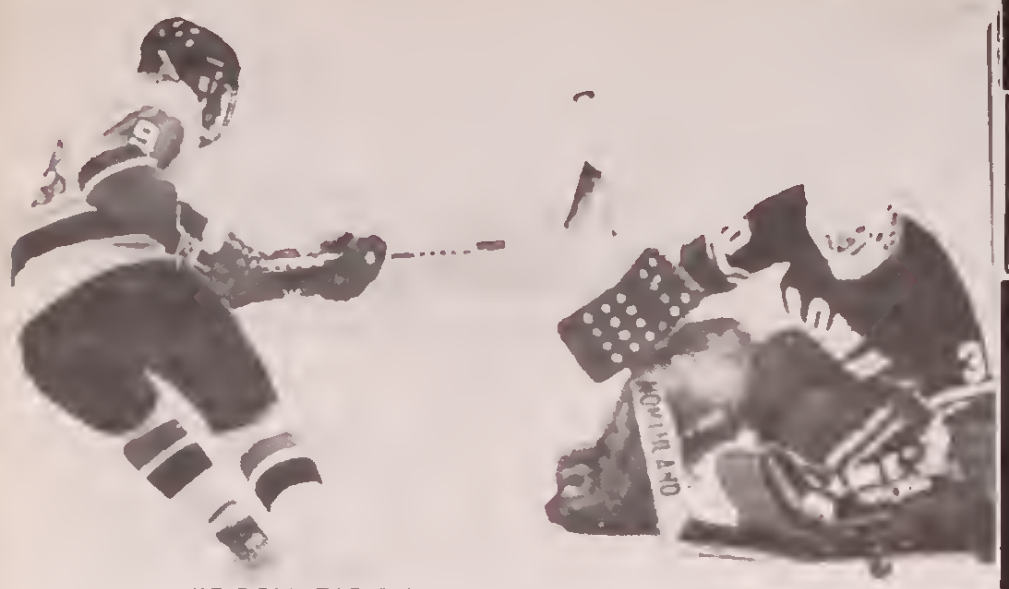
Win over Brown Puts Hockey Team into Playoffs Against RPI for Two-Game Set This Weekend



THIS ONE DIDN'T ROLL FAR ENOUGH: Brown's goalie John Franzosa had the puck roll into his glove on Danni Titus' third period shot Friday night at Baker Rink, but four other shots got by him in Princeton's 4-2 triumph. The victory assured the Tigers of reaching the ECAC playoffs for the first time 17 years.

The Princeton hockey team did not disappoint its followers in Baker Rink Friday night, finally nailing down a spot in the ECAC Division I playoffs with a 4-2 victory over Brown.

The disappointment came 48 hours later, however, when the Tigers wrapped up their regular season with a decidedly mediocre performance in a 4-1 loss to Yale.

A triumph over the Elis would have moved the Orange and Black into seventh place in the division standings, and matched them against Harvard this weekend. Instead, they will face top-ranked RPI in Troy in a two-game set Friday and Saturday evenings.

If by any chance the games are split, total goals would decided the winner. If that is the same, a 10-minute sudden death game would be played. Princeton's chances against Harvard would have been slim, but against the Engineers they are virtually non-existent.

RPI, 20-1, 28-2 overall, had no equal in ECAC play this season, and is ranked second in the nation behind Michigan State. It will be playing in the 5,600-seat Houston Field House both nights before a capacity crowd, that will yell itself hoarse in support of the home team.

Princeton's task is formidable. Just for the record, if it pulled off a minor miracle and beat the Engineers, it would be in Boston the following weekend in the semi-finals against the winner of the Harvard-Colgate contests.

Yale Dominates. Play. Any repeat of Sunday's performance will guarantee the Orange and Black will be blown out both nights in Troy. They avoided a blowout against the Bulldogs, but seemed out of this one early on.

Coach Jim Higgins was not happy with his team's play in his comments after the game. "We had some players who were no-shows today," he said. "I can't figure it out. There was a lot of standing around and not enough playing. We are a team which must play with emotion and intensity to win."

The Tigers didn't have either, and the visitors slowly took control of the outcome, scoring power play goals early in the first and second periods. To Yale's credit, its teamwork when it had a man advantage was superb.

Behind by 2-0 in the third period, the Tigers came briefly to life on their final power play opportunity. They had failed to put even a decent amount of pressure on Yale's Scott Relick, much less score in their first four.

On this one, after a faceoff to the right of the Yale goal, Allan Gray took a pass from Rob Scheuer and slid a soft shot between Rellick's pads and into the net. That narrowed the deficit to 2-1, but any hopes of a comeback were quashed four minutes later, when Yale went ahead 3-1.

Its final tally sailed from center ice into an empty net with 44 seconds remaining. Dave Marotta turned away 34 sho's. Rellick had 26 saves, many of them not very difficult, as the Tigers shot wide of the net on some of their best chances.

Loss to Brown Avenged. Given the playoff circumstances, Princeton already had enough motivation when it met Brown Friday night, but there was an added incentive as well. It had lost, 1-0, in overtime in Providence, on a controversial call by a referee that disallowed a Tiger goal.

And the Orange and Black warmed to its task immediately, scoring twice before the first period was half over, as a crowd of 2,022 roared its approval. On both occasions it was a little bit of extra effort in front of the goal that produced the tallies.

The first came at 2:24 when Tom Shustarich dove toward goalie John Franzosa and poked the puck away from his pads and into the net. John Rocco, back in action after a shoulder separation, and Dave Downing, picked up assists. At 7:51, with the Tigers enjoying a man advantage Gray finished off another play just to the right of the net, when he smacked the puck off Franzosa and it rebounded into the goal.

While giving the home forces a 2-0 lead, the goals also seemed to take some of Princeton's intensity away, and it lost the momentum to Brown in the latter half of the period. It proved costly when the visitors cut the margin to 2-1 at 18:27. The tally will not go into the books as a short handed goal, but in reality it materialized with the Bruins a man down.

The game could have gone either way early in the second period, but Princeton blunted Brown's early push, and then regained the initiative, scoring twice in a little over two minutes. Tim Oshier, assisted by Steve MacDonald made the score 3-1 at 13:38.

The third line combination of Shustarich, Rocco and Dowing struck again at 15:50, with Shustarich notching his second of the night. It came at a time when Brown was stupidly more interested in slamming Tiger players into the boards than keeping an eye on the puck. The visitors were whistled for 9 penalties to 7 for Princeton, in what was a rather chippy game at times.

In the final frame, the Tigers had a couple of chances, but mainly concentrated on keeping the Bruins' attack off stride. They let up just once, and Marotta was beaten for the second time at 2:37. He made 23 saves. Franzosa had 29.

Win or lose in Troy, Princeton has much to celebrate this season: a spot in the playoffs for the first time since 1967-68, and a .500 record for the regular season, 12-12-2. That gave followers of the sport here double their money's worth this winter: a renovated Baker Rink and a playoff team. Both have been a long time coming.

64-55 Loss to Powerful Franklin in State Tournament Can't Diminish Fine 15-8 Season for Trotman's Team

There was to be no miracle upset of top-seeded Franklin Township by the Princeton High School bsketball team last week. The outsized, but not outfought, Little Tigers gave it all they had, but fell, 64-55, to the home court Warriors who won their 23rd contest in 25 games.

The loss eliminated Princeton High from the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group 3 state competition. PHS had advanced to the quarterfinals with an opening round, 68-60, win over South Plainfield three days earlier. The Blue and White finished its season with a fine 15-8 record. The previous seasnn it was 6-12.

"We came a long way this year. Hold your heads up high; we have nothing to he ashamed of," were the first words PHS coach Marvin Trotman told his players, as they gathered in the locker room after the game.

Afterwards Trotman told reporters, "It's frustrating in one sense, (PHS has never won two state tourney games the same year) but it certainly is not earth shattering.

"We were a little intimidated," Trotman continued. "We were a little tentative. We didn't rebound. We didn't go to the basket. You just can't keep coming back; you can go to the well only so many times."

The loss could not diminish what the Little Tigers had accomplished this season, Trotman added. "I'm very proud of this team; I want everybody to know that. We did a lot of things people said we would never do. I'm happy with the kids; I'm happy with the fan support; I'm sorry we just didn't give them a win tonight."

Then Trotman, who is a guidance counsellor at PHS and concerns himself with the academic future of his students, observed, "Let's keep it in perspective. This is still a game; it's not the end of the world. The seniors on this team are going on to much more important things. I wish them the best."

IT'S MINE! Princeton High's Darryl Hemingway (20) and Franklin's Lamar Fair battle for rebound in Friday's NJSIAA Central Jersey Group 3 quarter final contest at Franklin High. Also jumping into the fray at right is Scott Fisher of PHS. Top-seeded Franklin (23-2) managed to hold off the scrappy Little Tigers for a 64-55 victory. (W.L. Bill Allen Photo)

As for the game itself, Trotman remarked that "The hot team in a tournament wins. Even when we came back we could not get that basket that would put us over the hump. Our man-to-man press was not impressive tonight."

Two things conspired to keep the Little Tigers off track: foul trouble and turnovers. The ball-hawking Warriors forced PHS to turn the ball over 27 times. Freddie Young, Marv Trotman Jr. and Scott Fisher all had three personals at halftime, and when Trotman committed his fourth two minutes and 17 seconds into the third period, Trotman Sr. sat him down until the final few minutes. Trotman was limited to five points — all in the first period — for his season's low.

Before a packed crowd, the Warriors jumped to an early lead. The turning point may have come as early as 1:09 left in the first period when Trotman was called for a double technical by referee Bobby Kochell. When Darrin Roberts calmly saak all four free throws, the Warriors owned a 17-6 lead.

That became significant early in the second quarter after six consecutive points by Mike Riddick, one a three-point play, narrowed Franklin's lead to 19-15, but that was as close as PHS was ever to come. Franklin scored the next five points to open up a 24-15 margin, and PHS was unable to come closer than seven the remainder of the contest.

Not that play wasn't hard-fought from the opening buzzer. The ball was continually ricocheting off upraised arms and flying bodies. Young, who finished with 18 points, fueled Princeton's last run when he combined four free throws at the end of the third period with the first two baskets in the final period to cut Franklin's lead to 49-40. Young had ten in the final period, the only one in which PHS outscored Franklin.

Later, Trotman underscored Young's performance by commenting, "We had only one kid who played a good game tonight. That was Freddie, but you can't win with one man."

Trailing Young in scoring for PHS were Fisher with 11, and Steve Davis with 10, Davis hitting from outside. Riddick finished with six, while Rob Bosley and Trotman had five each. Franklin's Roberts tied Young for scoring honors with 18 points. Teammate Steve Scott contributed 11 points and 11 rebounds.

"This team has my utmost respect," summed up Trotman. "We didn't give up at any time ths year year. It had character. That's something to dwell on."

When asked what accounted for the dramatic turnaround this year, Trotman replied, "A rededication. A complete team effort. It was real dedication on their part."

13 For Bosley. Earlier, PHS had combined two fine reserve performances by Riddick and Bosley — Bosley's 13 points his high for the year — its superior quickness and 32 points by Trotman and Young (17 by Trotman) to defeat South Plainfield. Also contributing to the win were a season-low eight turnovers by the Little Tigers, and the absence of South Plainfield's leading scorer and rebounder, 6-6 junior Joe Thompson, who was sidelined with a knee injury.

Trotman was highly impressed with the few turnovers. "I can't belive it," he said. "That's tremendous because we are a fast break team. That's the best effort in that department by us all year."

PHS took command of the game in the third period when it outscored Plainfield, 21-13. It outrebounded the losers, 31-25, as Trotman and Young combined for 18 boards.

Six Graduate. Trotman loses four-fifths of his starters through graduation. Joining starters Young, Fisher, Davis and Darryl Hemingway are Frantz Massenat and Tony Granger.

Next year's squad will be built around Trotman, Riddick and Bosley plus 6-4, 225-pound Keith Webber and Jim Jones. Two freshmen on the squad who may help are 5-11 John Thompson and 5-9 Darius Young.

"All in all, we still should be competitive next year," predicted Trotman. Having turned the Little Tigers around, capturing the Valley Division title in the Colonial Valley Conference and finishing a surprising second in the Mercer County Tournament this year, Trotman certainly wants more. After all, he isn't called "The Marvelous One" for nothing.

TRACEY LOSES IN OT

In Wrestling Regionals. Princeton High School's Dominic Tracey, the first PHS wrestler to advance to the NJSIAA Region 5 wrestling competition since 1980, was eliminated last week in the pre-quarterfinal round at Piscataway.

In the 171-pound division, Tracey and his opponent, Mike Campisano of North Brunswick, who had won twice as many bouts as Tracey, battled to a 3-3 deadlock at the end of regulation time. Tracey, commented PHS coach Lee Merrill, had Campisano up in the air to almost win the bout in regulation time, but in the overtime period, Campisano gained a reversal and won a 5-3 decision.

Incidentally, TOWN TOPICS was in error last week when it reported that Matt Wilkinson was the last PHS wrestler to compete in the District 5 Regionals. That honor belongs to Rob Schmidt.

Thin Again Next Year? Merrill loses Tracey, and also his two top performers, heavyweight Paul Johnson and 189-pounder Brett Van de-Bovenkamp, to graduation. With a thin squad this season, he guided the Little Tigers to three dual meet victories in 12 outings.

As for the outlook next year and the hope of reversing a PHS decline from power in the sport, Merrill has no reason to be optimistic. "It could be a thin squad again," he said.

It's hard to maintain a program, Merrill observed, citing the competition from winter track and swimming — a new varsity sport at the school — as one reason. "We've got to get some new big men out." Too often, said Merrill, if candidates feel they are not going to make the team they don't show up.

Merrill also needs help at the lower weights. This year he had to forfeit the 101- and 108-pound classes all season because he had no one to fill those spots. "We'll have strength in the middle but at the two ends we might have some trouble," he concluded.

Community Park "A" Paddle Team Is Now in the State's Top Series

Having ended the season six matches ahead of its nearest contenders, Community Park's "A" Team easily finished in first place in Series II of the New Jersey Platform Tennis League.

Captain Marge Claghorn and her teammates thus earned the right to challenge into Series I, and won that, capturing two of three matches. Although Wendy Rayner and Joan Hall (8-2) were defeated at number three doubles, Sally Skey and Louise Gengler (10-1) at number one, and Linda Wolf and Marge Claghorn (7-2) at two won in straight sets to move the team into the top series in the state.

The other regular team members, Susan Hahn and Polly Miller, along with substitutes Chloe Adams, Vicky Campbell, Betty Constable, and Enid Woodworth contributed to the victorious season of seven wins, six splits and one loss.

Community Park's "B" team, although not winning its series championship this year, has also had good success in moving up the ladder in state series competition. Under the guidance of Janet De Grouchy and Constable, the "B" team has moved up three series groups in the last five years.

This year the team finished a solid third behind the strong play of Constable, De Grouchy and Woodworth. Other "B" team contributors were Pat O'Hara, Linda Corlette, Barbara Smoyer, Mary Precheur, Dorothy Katz, Julie White, Patsy Van Dusen, Hope Carter and Vicky Campbell.

THOMPSON EXCELS

In Dillon League. John Thompson and Rob Cifelli led the undefeated Hoyas to a 67-65 victory over the Yellow Jackets in one of the season's most exciting contests.

In the game which saw 21 lead changes, the winner was decided when Thompson sunk both ends of a one and one with three seconds remaining to score a season high 45 points. Cifelli added 12 for the Hoyas and earned the praise of his coaches for "solid rebounding and playmaking." Darius Young scored 38 points for the Jackets while John Abernathy added eight.

In Junior Division play the Tar Heels coasted to a 34-8 victory over the Hoppers. Mitch Jensen paced the Heels with a season high 15 points while Reuben Steiger and Ernest Jean-Louis added nine and eight points respectively.

The playoffs will begin soon in both divisions with the championship games set for Saturday, March 16.

Ralph Hulit

characteristically, because he never seems to get irritated with anyone, he adds, "I won't tell you about the SOBs. Every store knows them. We have lists and compare. You can't please them no matter what you do."

Roots are Deep. Ralph Hulit's Princeton roots are deep. He went to school here and married Mary Mack, the girl who lived around the corner on Jefferson Road. The Macks are a third-generation family who go back before the Hulit's, he said. Mary is a retired fourth-grade teacher.

After the war, in 1947, he bought a double block house on Moore Street with the aid of a GI mortgage and he has lived there ever since. A sister lives in the other half. He walked to work every morning. "I still like to walk; I've worn out a lot of shoes myself," he says.

In addition to Ralph Jr., who, after working at Hulit's for a number of years, is now a salesman for several shoe companies, Ralph and Mary have a daughter, Kathleen, an architect who lives in New York. Another son, John, a lineman on the Princeton High football team some years back, is one of the buyers for Hulit's Shoes.

Together, the three have presented Ralph and Mary with seven grandchildren. "It seems every time you turn around, someone is having a birthday," quipped Ralph.

Although his days in the navy gave Ralph a chance to see the world, he says he still wants to see more. "I've done a lot of traveling in the past ten years and I plan to see more," he said.

He and Mary have visited almost every country in Western Europe. They have been to Italy, their favorite, three times. "I've cruised around the Greek Islands and ridden camels in Egypt. There's still lots to see," says Ralph.

Ahead this summer is a trip to Washington and Oregon, the only two states (aside from Alaska) they haven't visited.

Does he miss the daily routine of working?

"I don't miss anything; I'm enjoying my retirement, replies Ralph. "They still call me when they have a couple of problems at the store."

"It's all attitude. You're no older than you think you are," he sums up.

Clearly, at 66, Ralph Hulit plans to keep on feeling young for many more years to come.

REGISTRATION DUE

For After School Care. The YWCA is accepting registration for its 1985-86 After School Program.

After school care, 3-5:30 p.m., and full day care, 8 to 5:30 on most school holidays, is provided by the Princeton YWCA on two sites. The YM-YWCA building on Paul Robeson Place serves kindergarten through first grade, and the Community Park School site serves grades 2-5. Transportation is available for all Princeton Regional elementary school children in grades K-4.

In addition the YWCA has set up a special kindergarten program between 1 and 3 during the Princeton Regional Schools kindergarten phase-in period at the beginning of the school year. Kindergarteners will be picked up at their schools by After School Program teachers for special activities from 1 to 3 at the YWCA before joining the regular ASP program at 3. The cost is $25.

The After School Care Program participates in the federal Child Care Food Program. Lunches and snacks are available at no separate charge. In addition to sponsoring the food program, the YWCA ASP has limited tuition scholarships available under the jurisdiction of the state Division of Youth and Family Services. Eligibility and fees are established on a sliding scale.
